

WINTER SPORTS PREVIEW 2024

GIRLS IN CORTLAND COUNTY OUTPACE BOYS IN DRINKING

Understanding the Situation

Data from the 2022 Cortland County Youth Survey draws attention to a troubling trend: a notable percentage of girls, especially those in grades 11-12, are involved in alcohol use and binge drinking. 17.2% of girls in grades 11-12 reported drinking in past 30 days compared 12.5% of boys. Girls are also experiencing various negative consequences associated with their alcohol consumption.

Girls are not merely experimenting with alcohol; they're consuming it in quantities that can cause severe harm. The data reveals that of the girls aged 17-18 who reported drinking, 15.0% admitted to binge drinking in the past month. As parents, educators, and community members, it's crucial to understand the severity of these figures. Alcohol can profoundly affect the developing teenage brain, potentially impacting cognitive functions, decision-making abilities, and emotional health.

According to the survey, girls report notably higher rates of hangovers (15.3% compared to 9% for males), blackouts (12.9% versus 4.8%), problems with their dating partners due to drinking (7.9% against 5.4%), and regrettable situations post-drinking (8.4% versus 4.8%). The data highlights clear gender disparities in the consequences of alcohol consumption among adolescents. This not only jeopardizes their health, but can also lead to poor academic performance, strained relationships, and high-risk behaviors.

Prevention Strategies

The focus should be on prevention, education, and early intervention. Here are some steps parents can take to help prevent alcohol use among their girls:

Open Communication: Foster an environment where your girls can openly discuss their thoughts and feelings about alcohol. Talk about the risks and consequences, and encourage them to share their experiences, concerns, and any peer pressure they might be encountering.

Set Clear Expectations: Make your stance on underage drinking clear. Establish rules and consequences about alcohol use.

Engage In Their Lives: Be involved in your girl's daily activities. Know their friends and their friends' parents. Encourage participation in sports, clubs, or other extracurricular activities that can provide a healthy outlet for their energy and interests.

Early Education: Initiate the conversation about alcohol early. Arm them with facts about alcohol, its effects on their bodies and brains, and the legal implications of underage drinking.

Seek Professional Help If Necessary: If you notice signs of alcohol abuse, seek help from a mental health professional immediately. Early intervention can prevent the evolution of more severe issues.

30 DAY USE:
23% of girls in grades 11-12 reported drinking in the past 30 days

BLACKOUTS:
12.9% of 11-12th grade girls reported blacking out from drinking

8.4% of 11-12th grade girls reported getting into a situation they later regretted from drinking

BINGE DRINKING:
20% of 17-18 year old girls reported binge drinking in past month

CORTLAND GIRLS BASKETBALL hoping to continue recent success

By MIKE ROSE
Sports Reporter
mrose@cortlandstandard.com

The Cortland girls basketball program has been dominant in recent years, and the expectations remain unchanged despite a new cast of talent at the top.

The Purple Tigers were Class B sectional champions two years ago after a 21-5 campaign and rolled to a 21-2 season a year ago before falling in the Class A finals to Indian River. The Wolves accounted for both losses for Cortland last season.

Head coach Janice Meyer still believes her team will be right in the mix despite the fact it may look different then years past.

“There are so many little things that we’ve done behind the scenes for years that gave us the opportunity to compete with the best teams and find opportunities to win,” Meyer said. “The last three years, the build up each year has just been tremendous. We have our own big shoes to fill and it’s really easy to get caught up in that. We’ve been spending a lot of time going back to just figuring out what to do day to day to win each game.”

Cortland’s Aubree Larkin tees up a 3-pointer last season. Larkin is one of the few returners to play big minutes during the Purple Tigers’ back-to-back runs to sectional championship games.

“It’s not going to look the same,” Meyer added. “We have the same goals. We have the same ideas in our brain about competing every game, winning the games we should and putting those away in a way that makes us more prepared for the games that maybe we shouldn’t win, but we give ourselves a fighting chance.”

Cortland will have to replace a huge portion of its production from a season ago. Cortland’s top three players in points, rebounds, assists and steals all have moved on in Valerosa Gambitta, Kendall Mack and Claire Turner. The trio accounted for 34.4 points of the 53 points the Purple Tigers averaged per game. After all the success Cortland enjoyed with that core at the center, the Purple Tigers will have to find new ways to win games.

“I think it’s not really about filling in gaps as much as about finding what our new identity is,” Meyer said. “That’s what we’ve been doing since April is figuring out what’s important to this team and what’s going to work. We shoot the ball really well, we’ve got some speed. We lost some size and physicality and we have a defensive mind for sure. So the biggest thing is going to be finding what this new identity is and what that looks like.”

As for who Cortland will turn to to soak up all of the lost production from a year ago, Meyer believes it will have to come by committee. Kartyr Hubbard and Aubree Larkin are two players that Meyer is excited to see in a bigger role entering their senior seasons. Hubbard grabbed the fourth most rebounds a season ago for Cortland, but averaged just 1.8 points. Larkin averaged 3.9 points per game a season ago and was fourth on the team in assists and fifth in rebounds.

“When I look down the line, I’m not even set on my starters yet and I’m not even sure if it’s a year that we’re going to have set starters,” Meyer said. “Kartyr

CORTLAND WRESTLING trudging on without leaders

By PAUL CIFONELLI
Sports Editor
pcfionelli@cortlandstandard.com

The Cortland wrestling team graduated a pair of seniors who qualified for the state tournament last year and are left with just six returners for this year.

Avery Canzano and Wyatt Tinker both had monster years for Cortland in 2023-23. Canzano went 39-3 with a win and a pair of losses at states and Tinker was 27-11 and went 2-2 at states.

Suzee Barber, KR Dye and Nickolas Hines also graduated last year.

Cortland doesn’t return a wrestler who had a winning record last year, but juniors Jackson Marks and Anthoni Nemecek ended last season strong. Marks went 15-18, but placed fourth at the King Bison Invitational and sixth at the OHSL tournament to qualify for the Section III Class B tournament. Nemecek started last year 2-11 before winning his final three matches, including two at the Phoenix Quad Meet.

Senior Jaheim Robinson also went 5-17 last year, sophomore Garrett Major finished 4-13, sophomore Landon West was 2-15 and senior David Strauf went just 0-4.

The Purple Tigers will have three newcomers to the squad, with juniors Triston Allen, Mason Lavigne and Henry Reeves all joining the team.

Cortland’s season begins at 6 p.m. Dec. 4 at home against Hannibal.

CORTLAND BOYS BASKETBALL

hoping experience powers bounce-back season

By MIKE ROSE
Sports Reporter

mrose@cortlandstandard.com

The Cortland boys basketball team is looking to turn a corner this season after a disappointing campaign a year ago. The Purple Tigers finished 4-16 and opted out of sectional play.

This season a roster packed with returning players has Cortland poised for a quick turnaround. The Purple Tigers return nine players and six seniors to this year's team. Head coach Jeremy Milligan believes the experience will pay dividends for his team.

"I think one of our downfalls last year was that we only had two seniors, and really only one had much court experience," Milligan said. "We were just super inexperienced. We were fairly small for a varsity team — our tallest team member was 6'2. So, the youth, the inexperience, the lack of size did not allow us to win many games. We competed in many games, but we weren't able to pull out a lot of games."

"We have nine gentlemen returning and all nine have seen court experience," Milligan added. "I think that I'm most excited to have a very athletic team, a team that is willing to compete and work hard, but that now has that experience of knowing what varsity basketball is like and knowing what the expectations in our program are. In my experience, seniors typically step up and help lead their team and I'm looking forward to having that senior leadership guiding the squad this year."

The returnees are headlined by Caden Albright, last year's leader in points and assists per game. Jaxson Gambitta and Damauri Bell also return as starters from last season's team.

"Being back for a fourth year speaks volumes about Caden's athleticism and talent," Milligan said. "Having your leading scorer and the person that sets other teammates up the best statistically last year certainly helps. We have Jaxson and Damauri, who are in their third year starting. The fact they've been with the team and starting for so many years, I think that experience is going to pay off big dividends for us."

Additionally, Milligan is looking to Owen Johnson, Zach Muir and Cal Albright to make bigger contributions in their second season on the team. Cal Albright finished as the top 3-point shooter by percentage and made the second most threes a season ago. Milligan wants his team to play with tempo and fully take advantage of the athleticism and depth.

"We're going to want to play fast," Milligan said. "We're going to play with a couple new wrinkles and twists offensively and defensively that we have not done in the past. And I think we're going to try to utilize our experience and athleticism to be a dangerous team where multiple players are all threats to score. I don't feel like we have one centerpiece player that we're trying to develop around. We have a good blend of players who all have the skills to be successful on the court. So, just finding that balance of utilizing all of our players and embracing the notion that it doesn't matter who scores a bucket for the team as long as the team gets up a great shot, we want to celebrate that aspect."

Cortland opens its season on the road at 6:45 p.m. Dec. 5 against Oswego.

CORTLAND/HOMER HOCKEY

entering new era

By MIKE ROSE
Sports Reporter

mrose@cortlandstandard.com

After a 3-17 season a year ago, the Cortland/Homer hockey program will begin this season looking to establish a new era. Alum Alex Rosato steps to the helm as the new head coach of the program, taking over for Paul Quinlan.

Rosato faces plenty of big challenges in his first season, most notably replacing last season's goal production. Of the 55 goals scored last season, only 11 were scored by players who return this year. Brennan Andrews, Bodey McGrath and Cooper Swartz, a trio of seniors, represent the returning production. Rosato knows some new faces will need to step into different roles this season.

"It's going to look a little different, but I'm certainly excited and the kids I've been able to interact with seem excited too," Rosato said. "The initial challenge is getting everyone on the same page. Coach Quinlan did a lot of great things, but naturally

Cortland/Homer's Gabe O'Connor watches the puck while making a pass last year. O'Connor is one of the Golden Eagles' top returning players as they look to build on a three-win season.

I'm sure I'm going to be different in some retrospect. So just getting the kids accustomed to me as well as the other coaches is going to be the initial challenge. Once we get that settled it's really going to be just continuing to grow."

"The vast majority of our goals are no longer in the building, so that presents a challenge but also an opportunity," Rosato added. "We're looking for kids to step up and be leaders. For this to be a successful season we're going to have to focus on getting better each and every day. There's some big shoes to fill, but I'm optimistic the kids will rise to the occasion."

Andrews, McGrath and Swartz are the lone returning seniors on the roster entering this season. They will be called upon early to step up alongside whatever new faces. Rosato is excited for his young group to get a chance to grow.

"I had the chance to work in a summer league that is not associated with the school and a lot of our young guys participated in that, so I got to meet a lot of our underclassmen," Rosato said. "I think everyone has something to contribute. We're a young team and we've got some shoes to fill and we're excited to see what that'll look like."

The Golden Eagles will find out what they have quickly, as they begin the season with likely the biggest test on the entire schedule, the two-time defending Division 2 state champion Skaneateles Lakers.

"That's the standard," Rosato said. "How we do, we'll see. But my focus, whether we win every game this year or whether we mirror what we did last year, has to be on growing young athletes and leaders. If you focus on doing that, all that other success will come I look forward to it (the opener against Skaneateles). I think it's a wonderful measuring tool for what we're doing well and where we can grow. So, I'm excited for that challenge and opportunity."

Cortland/Homer opens the season on the road at noon Nov. 29 at the Skaneateles Community Center.

Hubbard and Aubree Larkin have been really looking good in pre-season. They're kind of embracing their leadership role as seniors who have played for me for a little while and things are starting to really click for them. They are two key returners who maybe weren't always in the books in previous years, but two kids I always knew would step up. If they continue to grow, I think they have a really high ceiling."

Seniors Lily Yang and Katie Harris are other returners Meyer thinks will be big for her team, particularly with their 3-point shooting. Nora Gambitta will be a new addition to the team this season who Meyer thinks can contribute as well. Overall, Cortland has embraced the challenge of being known as one of the top teams in Section III in recent years.

"I think the biggest thing is to take pressure as a privilege," Meyer said. "The pressure has been fully earned due to hard work, buy-in and success. It's a positive, it's a good thing to be good. It's a good thing for people to want to have your head because you beat them last year. We've earned our titles, we've earned our keep. So we're not looking at it as adversity but more as a challenge. I think it's going to be really cool."

Cortland will begin its quest to back up its previous success when it opens the season at home at 6:45 p.m. Dec. 3 against Central Square.

HOMER BOYS BASKETBALL

headed toward transition year

By PAUL CIFONELLI
Sports Editor

pcifonelli@cortlandstandard.com
The Homer boys basketball team lost three-fifths of its starting lineup from last year and will be looking to a few returning seniors to lead the younger guys to success.

Kaden Durham and Max Franco are the two starters from the 2023-24 team coming back. Durham averaged 9.8 points and 8.3 rebounds last season and Franco pitched in 9.5 points per game. Homer head coach Ken Updike is looking at those two, as well as senior Jack Brady, to lead the Trojans this year.

“Both Kaden and Max have been with us on the varsity team since they were sophomores and both of them had roles as sophomores,” Updike said. “We saw those roles grow more prominent as juniors. The natural progression is, those guys with lots of experience are going to lead us on and off the floor.”

“Another guy who’s waited his turn, who’s been with us since his sophomore year is Jack Brady,” Updike added. “It’s been nice to see Jack Brady be comfortable with himself in other sports. He’s had success this football year and I think that will help him with a little confidence coming into the basketball season.”

Durham, in particular, has done a lot to elevate himself this off-season. Updike feels he will be ready to take on some more usage this year.

“Kaden has put a lot of time into his game from the spring and over the summer, and he’s initiated those efforts,” Updike said. “Kaden deserves a lot of credit for putting himself in positions to get better. I think an area that I’ve seen him stand out is as a leader.”

Homer will need new guys to step up and replace the production from Wyatt Wilbur, Mitchell Earle and Tyler VanEtten from last year. Updike expects Brycen Poole, Ryan Beard and Dane Francis to be three of the top guys to contribute from a good JV squad last year.

“We’re going to expect sooner than later that they’re going to be comfortable in those roles we give them,” Updike said. “It’s more than comfort in an individual role, it’s being able to mesh those individual roles into a team.”

Homer has some difficult stretches on the schedule and Updike knows it could be an uphill battle at times. He is hoping things can start to come together at some point before the postseason.

“We just want to be the best we can be by February,” Updike said. “We’re losing a top rebounder, top assist guy. We lost three seniors who were playing 30-plus minutes per game. We may have some growing pains, we may have some good nights, we may have some bad nights, but by February when it’s sectional time I think this is going to be a group that plays very well together.”

HOMER GIRLS BASKETBALL

seeking improvement in second year with core

By PAUL CIFONELLI

pcifonelli@cortlandstandard.com
The Homer girls basketball team is returning all but two players from last year’s 4-16 team as the Trojans are looking to take a step back toward contention.

Homer’s only senior last year was Aislynn Cobb, but junior Brayden Partigianoni appears to be out for the season after suffering an ACL tear during last year’s lacrosse season.

Missing Partigianoni for the season will hurt, but head coach Brad Sovocool expects she will still be around the team and make whatever impact she can.

Homer is bringing back nearly all of its production, including the team leader in points, rebounds, assists and steals — junior Lauren Franco. Franco went for 9.6 points per game last year, 7.5 rebounds per game, 1.7 assists per game and 2.5 steals per game in her first varsity season.

Senior Kaylee Darling and junior Anya Gofkowski will be entering their third varsity seasons. Darling is a post player looking poised for a breakout and Gofkowski was the top 3-point shooter and shot blocker on the roster a year ago.

Izzy Small, Kennadie Taylor, Lizzie McCloy and Maddie Morgan are all entering their second season on the varsity roster. Sovocool feels the experience gained last year will only help in 2024.

“These girls playing together for a year is certainly going to help going into this season,” Sovocool said. “We really started to put it together and gel toward the end of the season and that’s kind of continued this offseason. If we continue to work hard and they buy into what we’re teaching them, it should lead to more success.”

Sovocool is expecting different results this season despite having a nearly-identical roster.

“As a group we’ve made a big jump this offseason between summer league, AAU and open gyms,” Sovocool said. “These girls put in work in their free time and I’ve seen a ton of growth in them individually and together.”

“There’s still a lot of work to do,” Sovocool added. “If we continue to take strides forward it will lead to success.”

The third-year head coach appreciates that the team has put in the effort to make sure this season goes better.

“The one thing about this group that I love and appreciate is how many of them don’t miss an opportunity to get better,” Sovocool said. “For the most part, they all show up to offseason work despite them being three-sport athletes.”

Sovocool won’t see success in the win column this year, but wants to see the team get better and remain competitive.

“I expect these girls to come every day with the goal of improving and getting better one day, one practice and one game at a time,” Sovocool said. “If we continue with the upward trajectory we’re in, we’re going to find success. We have a good mix of teams on our schedule where I expect to be competitive with all of them. If we bring energy, effort and a positive attitude every day and meet the standard we set as coaches, then I’d call it a successful season.”

Homer’s first game is at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 3 at Skaneateles. The Trojans’ first home game is at 5 p.m. Dec. 6 against Tully in the first round of the Jessica M. Beal Memorial Tournament.

HOMER BOYS WRESTLING

poised for big year

By PAUL CIFONELLI
Sports Editor

pcifonelli@cortlandstandard.com
The Homer boys wrestling team only graduated one senior last year and is looking ready to make a jump back to being one of the elite programs in Section III.

The Trojans went through a bit of a transitional period the last few years after losing a big and talented senior class after the 2022-23 season.

Homer head coach Jason Reynolds rolled out an extremely young group last year and they delivered to the tune of a 13-7 record in dual meets. He was happy the guys battled and fought just like the veterans of teams past.

“What’s most impressive about our current group is that the approach didn’t change,” Reynolds said. “Last year, we won 13 duals with 25 freshmen and sophomores on our team. We have another good group of freshmen coming in this year and those freshmen and sophomores from last year are one more year mature. We’ve got a strong group of seniors, six of them, who have won a lot of matches in Homer wrestling singlets. I definitely anticipate us taking another step forward and really doing some damage.”

Reynolds is hoping the young group he had last year, combined with some more newcomers, can get the program back to the top of Section III Class B.

“This year, I’d like to approach that 20-win mark,” Reynolds said. “We’ve got a really tough league, Marcellus/Onondaga probably being the toughest team right now. We match up pretty well. I think this year’s dual will be a much better dual for us just based on what we know, what we have coming in and the work that these guys have done in the off-season. I think we’re going to be a different team.”

Reynolds has also seen some guys make big leaps on the individual side, most notably sophomore Owen Burhans. Burhans went 14-14 last year as a freshman, but had a big offseason that Reynolds hopes turns into a huge sophomore year.

“We had one young man (Burhans) go to Fargo, which is the biggest tournament in the country, over the offseason through U.S.A. wrestling,” Reynolds said. “He had a great experience there and I was really proud and happy for him that he was able to do that. That’s a big undertaking. He really took advantage of a great opportunity.”

Hunter Lines is the most successful returner, having gone 37-7 as a junior and 40-11 as a sophomore. Reynolds feels Lines has every chance to earn his first trip to the state tournament and get the Trojans represented in Albany again after a year off.

“I anticipate up to four guys having a chance to make that state tournament, but Hunter is at the top of that list,” Reynolds said. “Over his career he has 107 wins. He’s sixth in all-time wins and he’s in the company of some pretty special athletes. Quite honestly, he’s a special athlete himself. Not just the wins, but with the consistency. His consistency has been key as far as his approach and getting the job done.” Reynolds also believes senior Chris Slade and sophomore Jack Brown are capable of making the state tournament and has a feeling someone else will make a leap to that level, also.

The head coach has that feeling due to the amount of effort put in all over the program in the offseason.

“We’ve had guys at three or four camps with double digit Homer wrestlers at the camp, and that’s not including the young women who participate as well,” Reynolds said.

Homer’s season begins at 6 p.m. Dec. 5 at home against Whitney Point.

HOMER GIRLS WRESTLING

set to take on first year of freestyle

By PAUL CIFONELLI
Sports Editor

pcifonelli@cortlandstandard.com
New York State is adopting freestyle wrestling for the girls in the 2023-24 season and Homer will be making the change in the program’s third year.

Homer head coach Anna Cummings has headed the program since its inception and is happy with the change, despite some girls wrestling coaches across the state not being a fan of the decision.

“With freestyle being what the girls are doing in the Olympics and college, I think that it’s a good move for New York to get ahead of all of that and start getting our girls ready for all those competitions,” Cummings said.

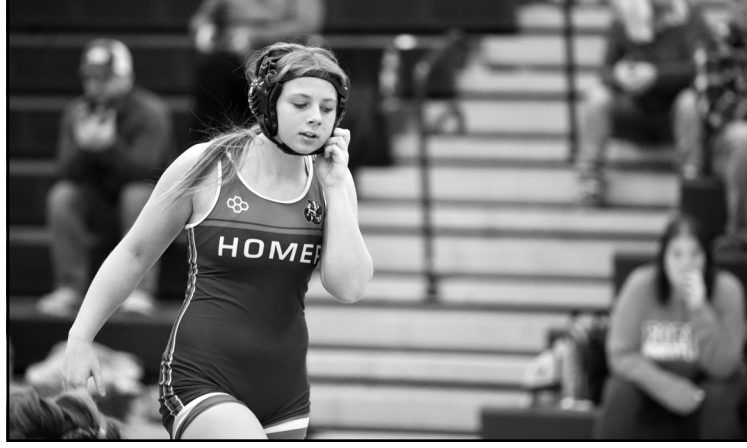

Cummings began teaching freestyle wrestling principles instead of folkstyle last year when she heard the change was coming. She thinks the girls could have a shorter adjustment period because of it.

“That means that we were concentrating on our feet more versus top/bottom,” Cummings said. “For the girls, they’re just going to have to adjust to not having to stand up off of bottom. In freestyle you kind of just stay flat until you’re brought back up to your feet. It’s more on your feet wrestling; that’s where you’re going to score most of your points.”

Homer will be without two-time state medalist Lily Sorenson this season. Cummings praised Lily Sorenson time and time again not just for her ability on the mat, but her leadership for the young program. With her gone, it’s time for other girls to step up.

“Lily was definitely a big help, but with us having so many girls returning that have done it the last couple years I think we’re going to do alright,” Cummings said. “We’re going to have those girls step up and be leaders. I had a couple girls doing some offseason stuff and really putting the time in, so I think those are the girls that are going to be stepping up and showing the way.”

Senior Gracie Newman and sophomore Molly Sorenson each made the state tournament last year, with Newman going 0-2 at the event and finishing with a 5-4 record and Molly Sorenson winning a match at states and going 15-7 on the season. Junior Alisa Gonzalez also went 17-2 last season.

Paul Cifonelli/sports editor

Homer’s Molly Sorenson takes off her headgear after a win last season. The Trojans will compete in freestyle wrestling this year after changing from folkstyle.

Seniors Madison Dawson, Shana O’Brien and Katilyn Porter and sophomore Mya Locke will all be back as well. Cummings has noticed Locke in particular has been working hard to have a breakout season this year.

“Mya Locke has been doing the most as far as offseason stuff,” Cummings said. “Watching her grow mentally and physically, I think she’s going to have a good showing this year.”

Cummings is hoping that, as girls wrestling grows statewide, so will the opportunities for dual meets. She’s confident the Trojans will have double digit wrestlers this season and hopes that would allow for some competitive duals.

The expanded roster will mean lots of first-time wrestlers, whom Cummings welcomes with open arms. She wants those girls to learn and grow all season while the returners make a leap to becoming some of the best around.

“We’re going to have a lot of new girls, so I’m excited to see them really fall in love with the sport, build their bond as a team and grow personally and become more confident,” Cummings said. “Personally, I’d like to see the girls that made states last year make it again and I’d really like for Mya to hopefully get there as well.”

Homer’s season opens at 6 p.m. Dec. 11 at West Genesee.

DRYDEN GIRLS BASKETBALL LOOKING FOR A REBOOT

By MIKE ROSE
Sports Reporter
mrose@cortlandstandard.com

For the second consecutive season, the Dryden girls basketball program will have a new head coach at the helm. It'll do so after a down year last season where they finished 5-15.

New head coach John Pascarella will be tasked to help lead the turnaround this year after serving as an assistant coach over the last several seasons. Pascarella is also the head coach for the varsity baseball team at Dryden.

"Last season was a tough season for the program, and this year we want to come out strong," Pascarella said.

Former SUNY Cortland standout Beth Bonin led the Lions last season.

Pascarella also noted that new JV coach Abby Wilkinson has brought energy to the program and been a great asset as Dryden looks to rebuild at all levels. The Lions are two years removed from losing their division via a tiebreaker and are looking to get back into that conversation.

Senior Maysie Davis and junior Guiliana Pascarella will be at the center of this year's Dryden team on the floor. Davis is expected to contribute most notably with her shooting while Pascarella will be at the center of a lot of what the Lions do offensively.

Dryden opens the season at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 6 on the road against Groton.

DRYDEN WRESTLING TO LEAN ON TALENTED DUO AT TOP

By PAUL CIFONELLI
Sports Editor
pcifonelli@cortlandstandard.com

The Dryden wrestling team lost nine seniors from last year's team, but a pair of standouts will return to lead the Lions.

Dryden graduated Paul Best, Nicholas Bieber, Brayden Juarez, Dean Belden, Isaac Collins, Chris Greene, Tyler Head, Kaitlyn Perrine and Brennan Torrico a year ago.

Oscar Brotherton went 32-6 as a freshman, earning himself a shot at the Section IV state qualifier. Brotherton placed fourth there after going 2-2. Senior Hunter Covington was 16-4 last season after missing a tournament in December and the final month of the season.

Both Brotherton and Covington appear poised to make another leap toward the top of Section IV.

Senior Cassandra Lindsey and sophomore Rebecca Greene both placed at the Section IV Girls Championships last year. Lindsey came in fifth in her weight class to cap a 10-13 season and Greene came in third at 100 pounds and went 11-14 on the season. Both Lindsey and Greene only wrestled other girls last year.

Senior Aaron Thompson also returns after a 13-16 2023-24, sophomore Aedan Lange was 15-15 last year and sophomore Gaven Valenti finished 9-8 a season ago.

Dryden's season kicks off at 6 p.m. Dec. 4 at home against Watkins Glen.
