State Sen. Cervantes wants competitive congressional district

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

During its upcoming special session on redistricting, state Sen. Joseph Cervantes of Las Cruces said he hopes the New Mexico Legislature will redraw the state's U.S. 2nd Congressional District, which includes Las Cruces and all of southern New Mexico, in a way that creates "a competitive and fair district that both parties can win."

Cervantes, a Democrat, is chair of the Senate Judiciary Committee and expects to carry the bill that redraws the state's three U.S. congressional districts, based on results of the 2020 census, during the special session.

Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham is expected to call the special session this month, with legislators meeting in Santa Fe to redraw congressional districts as well as districts for all 112 members of the state Legislature and for the state's 10-member New Mexico Public Education Commission.

State Public Regulation Commission (PRC) seats will not be redrawn because voters approved a state constitutional amendment in 2020 that changes the PRC from five members elected by voters to three members appointed by the governor with the consent of the state Senate. That change is effective Jan. 1, 2023.

A Las Cruces attorney, Cervantes served 12 years in the New Mexico House of Representatives before being elected to the state Senate in 2012. He has more combined House and Senate service than any other member of the Doña Ana County legislative delegation and will be participating in his third redistricting special session.

Throughout his 20 years in the Legislature, Cervantes said he has opposed the idea that New Mexico's 2nd Congressional District "should be a Republican seat," he said.

"I've always wanted this seat to be competitive (and) more reflective of its largest city (Las Cruces) and largest county (Doña Ana)," Cervantes said.

Heavily Democratic Doña Ana County has a population nearly three times as large as the next largest county in the district, but Republicans have held the 2nd District congressional (NM02) seat for nearly three-quarters of its 53-year history.

Since it was created in 1969, NM02 has been held by Republicans for 39 years (it will be 40 when current U.S. Rep. Yvette Herrell completes the second year of her first term in 2022) and by Democrats for 14 years. And Democrats have only held the seat for four of the last 31 years.

There have only been two U.S. representatives from Las Cruces in the district's history, totaling four years of service. Republican Ed Foreman of Las Cruces won the seat in 1968 and lost it two years later to Harold Runnels of Lovington. Las Cruces attorney Xochitl Torres Small won the seat in 2018, but lost it in a 2020 rematch with Herrell, a former Otero County state representative who lives in Alamogordo.

A congressional district that is drawn to keep one party in power "is not healthy for democracy," Cervantes said, and it makes the winner "accountable to the party, not the public."

Cervantes said he was concerned that the New Mexico Redistricting Committee had no members from southern New Mexico. The seven-member committee was appointed by leaders of both parties in both houses of the Legislature and by the state Ethics Commission last summer.

Its Nov. 2 final report, including proposed redistricting maps, can be viewed at www.nmredistricting.org. The Legislature is not required to

Lt. Gov. expects fair redistricting process, shares concerns with lawmakers

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

"I do think there's going to be a lot of discussion and healthy debate," Lt. Gov. Howie Morales said about the redistricting special session that will be held this month.

Morales said he is confident that legislators and Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham will work together for a fair redistricting process to ensure that "New Mexicans have proper representation."

Morales said he was concerned that there were no members of the New Mexico Citizen Redistricting Committee (NMCRC) from southern New Mexico. But, he said, the committee got a lot of input from around the state, and maps the committee put forward will be reviewed by the full Legislature, so every legislator from southern New Mexico "will have a say in that process," he said.

MICAELA LARA CADENA

Morales said he expects the Legislature to create a more competitive 2nd Congressional District (NM02) during the special session.

State Rep. Micaela Lara Cadena, D-Doña Ana, said she was hesitant to support the bill that authorized NMCRC because it created "another appointed board that was as political as you could get."

Cadena said she also was concerned that the committee, when appointed, had no members from southern New Mexico or from the state's Native American communities. But Cadena said the committee's public meetings were well attended, and she was "proud of the effort that went into it."

"I want a fair map," Cadena said, including a NM02 that "reflects the realities and numbers of the district we call home."

State Rep. Doreen Gallegos, D-Doña Ana, who is House majority whip, said protecting minorities' voting rights and the integrity of communities of interest in Doña Ana County and throughout the state will be important considerations.

"Redistricting will be quite the deal," said state Sen. Ron Griggs, R-Otero, Eddy, Doña Ana. "Since the Democrats control both the House and the Senate as well as the governor's office, I fully expect them to pass legislation and send it to the governor that she will then sign. How much input the minority party will have I really can't say, but we will know mid-December."

State Sen. Jeff Steinborn, D-Doña Ana, said the lack of a representative from southern New Mexico on NMCRC "from a Doña Ana County perspective, left something to be desired."

Local legislators will need to work together to preserve the communities of interest they represent, Steinborn said. The unincorporated community of Chaparral is one example, Steinborn said, because it lies in both Doña Ana and Otero counties.

"Now is the opportunity to get that right," he said.

The NMCRC "has been helpful," said state Rep. Angelica Rubio, D-Doña Ana. The maps proposed by the committee are reasonable, she said, and she expects the Legislature to pass and the governor to sign redistricting plans without the intervention of state courts.

The state's 2nd Congressional District is the most racially and economically diverse part of the state, and "should be more competitive," Rubio said.

Although he was concerned because there was no one from southern New Mexico on NMCRC, state Rep. Ray Lara, D-Doña Ana, said the committee did "a very good job," including listening to local residents, in putting together redistricting proposals. And because taxpayer money was spent to create NMCRC, the Legislature needs to give serious consideration to its proposals, he said.

Don't Let Your Fats, Oils, and Grease Go Down Your Drain This Holiday Season

By Cassie McClure

It's getting cold outside, and the brief warmth that your drains might get from a flow of hot grease from your turkey will not add to the holiday cheer at your house. In fact, it may add some stuffing to your drains that you didn't intend.

Any time fats, oils, and grease – known as FOG by those at Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) – go down the drain instead of into the trash, the FOG cools down, solidifies, and catches all the other things that also going down the drain, ultimately clogging the pipes.

“Just like shortening liquifies when heated then returns to a solid as it cools, the FOG that goes down your drain leads to clogs in the sewer lines of your residence as well as the city main lines,” said LCU Interim Deputy Director Wastewater Laura Montoya. “The FOG combines in our pipes and at our lift stations and can end up as massive fat clogs at the wastewater treatment facilities.”

Drippings off a holiday turkey, bacon grease, or thick sauces, all of these should be sopped up and placed in the trash when they are cool. If not, it could lead to costly sewer problems that can start with backups in your house and end with a larger problem in the neighborhood or even with nearby businesses.

The way to properly dispose of FOG is to pour greasy and Grease from cooking is a hazard to your pipes! Catch it in aluminum, let it cool and throw it in the trash.

oily waste into a container, let the FOG cool, and dispose of it in the garbage. One easy way is to take a sheet of aluminum foil, place it into a small pot, and mold it into a little bowl. Carefully pour the FOG in and wait for it to cool and harden. Then, fold over the ends of the aluminum sheet and toss it in the trash.

Lastly, pots and pans should be scraped of FOG before being washed or tossed in the dishwasher (which also leads to the drain). Greasy paper towels and wipes should also be disposed of in the trash and not into the toilet.

follow any of the committee's redistricting proposals. The redistricting plan proposed by a Democratic-controlled Legislature following the 2000 census was vetoed by then Gov. Gary Johnson, a Republican, and redistricting was ultimately decided by the state Supreme Court.

No vote was taken on an NM02 redistricting plan during the 2011 redistricting special session that followed the 2010 census, Cervantes said, because he and other legislators from southern New Mexico refused to support a plan that kept NM02 as a solidly Republican seat.

As before, the state's redistricting plans were ultimately drawn by the state's high court, which made the fewest possible changes to district boundaries as they existed at the time, Cervantes said.

District populations

For the purposes of redistricting, New Mexico's current population is 2,117,522. Ideally, that means 705,841 people should be in each of its three U.S. congressional districts — and the Legislature is mandated to get as close to that as possible. The 2020 population of each district is: 694,577 (11,264 under the ideal) in district one; 714,022 (8,181 over the ideal) in district two; and 708,923 (3,082 over the ideal) in district three.

The ideal population for each state Senate district is 50,417, and for each state House district it's 30,250.

Las Cruces has got a brand-new bag

You've heard me say more than once New Mexico has America's coolest state flag. There is something wonderful about the red Zia symbol against that golden field.

However, I've also said more than once, only half-jokingly, New Mexico's real state flag is a plastic Walmart bag, stuck to a bush, flapping in the wind. That's a sight we've all seen, probably as much as we've seen that beautiful Zia flag.

We should be seeing less of that plastic bag flag in Las Cruces starting in January. In theory, anyway.

Jan. 1, 2022, is when the city's new restrictions begin on single-use plastic bags.

I've been paying extra attention to those bags and how they're used since August, when the Las Cruces City Council unanimously passed the restriction.

Some entities will still be allowed to use them, including food pantries and take-out restaurants. Neither the county, the state nor nearby El Paso has a similar ban, at least not yet, so we'll still be seeing the bags for some time.

RICHARD COLTHARP

From the Publisher

Retailers have the opportunity to provide paper bags to customers and be able to charge us up to a 10-cent fee. I, for one, have always preferred paper bags anyway, at least the good, old-fashioned brown paper grocery bags. Back in high school in Oklahoma, I worked at Albertsons, and got pretty good at packing those bags efficiently. They also worked well as book covers and wrapping packages for mail.

Despite the paper preference, though, I've come to find some value in those single-use plastic bags, primarily because, for me anyway, they're seldom single-use.

In some statistics provided by Lisa LaRocque, the city's sustainability officer, the typical household uses 1,500 of these bags every year. The average length of use for them is 12 minutes.

I'd be surprised if I use 1,500 of the bags. For my household, it's probably far less. I also use mine more than 12 minutes.

Growing up, I regularly packed my bologna sandwich in small brown paper lunch bags, but they actually couldn't hold much more. If you packed a bag of Fritos and an apple, there wouldn't be room for a can of RC Cola. The modern, single-use plastic bags are great for packing lunches and can hold a lot more, and the handles mean you can carry them even when you're toting other stuff.

Single-use bags are also great as liners for small trash receptacles around your home or office.

I'll often use the single-use plastic bags to wrap other items I get from the store, especially things that can leak, such as meat, before I put them into the refrigerator. That's something a paper bag cannot do.

I know part of the motivation of the new restriction is to get people in the habit of going to the store with their own reusable bags. That's not a bad intention, but if you're like me, you'll forget and leave those bags at home nine times out of 10. Either that or leave them in your other vehicle.

There are some things, however, a reusable bag just can't do. One of them is pick up your dog's poop.

How many times have you gone to walk your dog in the park and it turns out the poop bag receptacle is empty? If you're walking them in the neighborhood where there is no poop bag receptacle, it's even

Seeing some familiar faces during trip to the museum

I took a trip to the museum of natural history. It was a fascinating place: a taxidermist's showcase. A dog heaven, what with all the prehistoric bones. But as I walked through the halls and stared at the infinite variety of creatures that stalked the Earth, I began to feel uneasy. I started seeing familiar faces looking back at me.

There stood the reincarnated remains of Stegosaurus. He was 25 feet long, had a hump in his back, big spikes on his tail and a skull about the size of a Spanish goat. The description said he wandered from place to place, grumbling about the mud and slashing his tail at his enemies. He had one brain the size of a walnut in his head that controlled his mouth. He had another in his rear end that controlled his tail. It is unlikely that the two brains communicated much. Thus, one end never knew what the other was doing so that if his mouth wasn't getting' him in trouble the other end was. He looked like every feedlot cowboy I've ever known.

Back in the corner was Brother Walrus, weighing in at 700 pounds. I could picture his rounding the corner of the loading chute, sittin' behind the wheel of his 2003 Lincoln. Or hooking his tusks out the window as he drove up and down the feedlot alley, figgerin' out how to shave 2 cents off the price. All he needed was a cheap cigar to look like yer typical, everyday packin' house buyer.

Rearing up before me, 17 feet tall, with a head the size of a front-end loader, was Tyrannosaurus rex. His huge mouth and armory of teeth reminded me of Carlsbad Caverns. Every creature gave him a wide berth. His front paws were very small, good for very little except, possibly, counting money. He ate everything he could catch and showed no mercy. The fiercest

NMSU football: Invest or drop down to a lower level of football

Plenty of good seats were still available at kickoff Saturday for the Aggies' final game of the football season, which was unfortunate but not surprising.

Unfortunate, because New Mexico State University beat the University of Massachusetts in an exciting game between two evenly matched teams played on a beautiful, sunny afternoon. Not surprising, because almost none of the previous games this season have met that criteria, except for the beautiful afternoon part.

NMSU started the season with more than 19,000 fans for the first home game against UTEP, which always draws scores of Miners' fans driving from El Paso. But attendance has fallen sharply since then, with just 7,802 fans for the Utah State game rattling around Aggie Memorial Stadium, which can hold up to 30,343.

WALT RUBEL

The View
From Here

That's a far cry from what Aggies fans were promised back in 2004, when former President Mike Martin convinced regents to make the massive financial investment needed to join the more prestigious Western Athletic Conference.

Martin had aspirations that were greater than his capacity to fulfill them.

And his plan backfired spectacularly when the WAC discontinued football. The Aggies were left on their own, trying to survive as an independent.

That led to schedules like this year's, with back-to-back drubbings at Alabama and Kentucky in so-called "money games" in which inferior teams get paid millions of dollars to play in games in which they are badly overmatched at every position and have no hope of winning.

Starting in the 2023-24 academic year, the Aggies will finally have the security of a conference home. Playing in Conference USA will give the team more reliable scheduling and an opportunity to compete against teams on their same level.

And, they will go into the new conference with a new coach. Jerry Kill brings a proven track record as a former head coach at Saginaw Valley State, Southern Illinois and Minnesota, which plays in the Big Ten, one of the so-called Power 5 conferences in college football.

A move to a new conference with a new veteran head coach is certainly reason for optimism. But Kill will face the same challenges that bedeviled his predecessors.

Doug Martin compiled a 25-74 record during a nine-year tenure in which his crowning achievement was to be the first NMSU coach in 57 years to win a bowl game. But that's because previous coaches couldn't have made it to a bowl game with a 6-6 regular-season record.

Before Martin was coach, DeWayne Walker compiled a 10-40 record. Hal Mumme was 11-38. Tony Samuel ended with a 34-57 record. Jim Hess was 22-55. Mike Knoll was 4-40. And on it goes. The last coach with a winning record was Warren Woodson, who stepped down in 1967.

At some point, you've got to conclude that the coach isn't the problem.

NMSU football has been plagued by a consistent lack of financial support at the level needed to compete in the FBS, what was formerly Division IA. And, all those losing seasons stacked on top of each other have led to waning interest and excitement for the program, both on campus and in the community.

College football at every level below the FBS is a sport. College football at the FBS level is a business. And, that business model has just been upended, with changes to how student athletes can be compensated.

NMSU officials believe there is great value that comes with the national recognition of playing in the FBS. But to make that business decision pay off, they have to make the necessary investments.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Velo Cruces organization urges cycling

Velo Cruces (www.velo-cruces.org), a bicycle and pedestrian advocacy organization, congratulates the City of Las Cruces climate change initiatives. Velo Cruces joins over 350 organizations worldwide (www.cop26cycling.com) asking for a commitment to significantly increase the number of people who bicycle.

Worldwide, transportation is responsible for 24 percent of direct CO2 emissions. Road vehicles account for nearly three-quarters of transport CO2 emissions. Road vehicles are polluting our air at unprecedented levels, killing an estimated 7 million people worldwide every year.

Bicycling represents one of humanity's greatest hopes for a shift towards a zero-carbon future. Swapping the car in cities for walking and bicycling even just one day a week can reduce your carbon footprint by about half a ton of CO2 over a year.

We urge the City to commit to significantly boost bicycling by:

- Promoting bicycling in all its forms
- Recognizing bicycling as a climate solution

• Collecting data on bicycling to know where improvements can be made

• Focusing on investments and incentives for communities historically marginalized from bicycling

• Building mobility solutions capable of covering all user needs without relying on a private car

Specific solutions for promoting bicycling must be included in the Las Cruces Zoning and Design Standards codes.

Required bicycle parking is needed in a safe and secure location at destinations. Roadways must be designed using Complete Streets standards to provide safe routes for bicyclists.

Bicycling is one of the best solutions we already have to ensure our planet is habitable for all generations to come.

worse. Of course, you can buy your own specially designed poop bags at the store, but they can be expensive. The single-use bags (and I highly recommend double-bagging for this purpose) work great to clean up after your dog.

Certainly, I'm outlining first-world issues here, and I'm not advocating rampant use of plastic bags.

I understand the motivations behind the new restrictions and the need to reduce the world's plastic. I hope the restriction reduces some of the visual clutter of Las Cruces, but I also wonder if the plastic-bags' replacement methods might create a bigger carbon footprint than the bags do. Regardless, we will find a way to adapt without the plastic bags.

I used to think we, as humans, would always adapt and find better ways to do things. Unfortunately, as I look around these days at some of the things we do, and some of the decisions we make, I'm more pessimistic than I used to be.

carnivore that ever lived ... yer friendly Ag loan officer.

Then I came upon a pitiful sight. A Giant Sloth, mired in the Tar Pits. He was being attacked by two Saber-toothed tigers (drug salesman), six hyenas (government bureaucrats), an alligator (the implement dealer) and a covey of buzzards (assorted veterinarians, consultants, county agents and commodity brokers). He was stuck in the tar.

He couldn't get out. Even if, by some miracle, he did manage to extricate himself from the tar, he'd still have to fight his way through the hungry predators.

Strangely enough, it occurred to me that if the Giant Sloth finally went under, so would the predators.

So it goes with the farmer and the rancher.

Senior appraiser Sambrano announces run for county assessor

BULLETIN REPORT

Lifelong Doña Ana County resident and county employee Daniel R. Sambrano announced his candidacy for Doña Ana County assessor, which is on the general election ballot in 2022.

Sambrano, a candidate in the June 2022 Democratic primary, said he has worked in the county assessor's office since 2003, "starting off as support staff and slowly rising through the ranks to my current position as senior appraiser."

During that time, he also worked for three years in the state Property Tax Division, Sambrano said, which "has executive authority over all assessors statewide."

"This experience over 18 years has given me a well-rounded perspective of the individual needs of every community from Garfield to Anapra, as well as an understanding of the statutes, rules and regulations of taxation and assessment," he said.

Sambrano said he attained the level of state-certified appraiser in 2011 "after years of education provided by the International Association of Assessing Officers."

Sambrano is a member and two-time president of Las Cruces Elks Lodge No. 1119 and currently holds state and national positions as an Elks member. He is a member of Our Lady of Purification Catholic Church and a former officer for its Knights of Columbus Council No. 16800.

Through volunteer service with a local groups and organizations, Sambrano said he has "been able to foster relationships with and get a feel for the needs of the citizens" in the county.

Professionally, Sambrano said he has worked in valuing manufactured housing, residential and commercial property.

"I have learned to treat everyone fairly and with respect," Sambrano said.

He will host a fundraising Tardeada, 3 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 12, at Palacio Bar, 2600 Avenida de Mesilla in Mesilla.

The event, which is for people age 21 and older, has a suggested donation of $10, he said.

Information: 575-639-2506 and Sambrano4DA-CAssessor@gmail.com.

BEFORE YOU DIG!

Did you know that gas, water, and utility lines have a huge network that is hidden safely away underground? Digging or excavation of any kind could interrupt those services if you don't call 8-1-1 first. Worse yet damage to utility lines can pose a danger to you, your family, and the community. BE SAFE, make a free call, dial 8-1-1 from any phone, anytime BEFORE starting any digging projects. We will come out to mark the utility lines in your area. It's fast, it's free, it's 8-1-1. Naturally the smart decision.

NMSU Noche de Luminarias returns after taking last year off

BULLETIN REPORT

The longtime tradition “Noche de Luminarias,” or “Night of Lights,” is set to make its return to New Mexico State University after pressing pause last year due to the pandemic.

This year marks the 36th anniversary of the event. The NMSU tradition was started in 1984 by Residence Hall volunteers who set up luminarias around their buildings. Corbett Center Program-Council later joined the Residence Halls and increased participation numbers. Since then, the event has grown to be one of the largest luminarias displays in New Mexico.

The Las Cruces and NMSU community will have the chance to view over 8,500 luminarias spread across campus outdoors from 5 to 8 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 5. NMSU students will have their own exclusive viewing time from 8 to 9 p.m.

“While this is a beautiful thing where we welcome all of Las Cruces, the students are still our main audience,” said Dr. Sarah Edwards, director of Student Involvement and Leadership Programs. “Making sure that they feel seen amid this community-welcoming event is something we take seriously, so we hope that everyone will attend and participate in this beautiful celebration.”

Community members can participate in a bundle of activities that will happen outside of the NMSU bookstore, including cookie decorating, a letters-to-Santa station, holiday music and much more. Organizers will also screen a Christmas movie. In an effort to help protect the community amid the pandemic, all activities will be outdoors this year. The luminarias will also be lighting up the horseshoe for those who prefer to drive by or visit the display from a distance.

The event is a campus collaborative effort between the Student Involvement and Leadership Programs office, Associated Students of NMSU, Auxiliary Services, Residence Hall Association and the NMSU Bookstore.

DACC accepting holiday donations for children, pets in need

BULLETIN REPORT

Doña Ana Community College's Education Club is accepting donations for children in need for the upcoming holiday season, DACC said in a news release.

The Education Club is sponsoring a family of four through the Jardin de los Niños Adopt-a-Family Campaign.

"Jardin de los Niños is more than a preschool or daycare center," the news release said. Jardin also provides "crucial services such as emergency food, shelter and much more for children and families in need."

Funds raised from the campaign will go toward providing toys for the family's children and winter clothing for the entire family.

"This fundraiser is very important to us. As instructors of education and for our future educators, we want to ensure every child and their family are able to have a great and deserving holiday season," said, DACC Early Childhood Education associate professor Kathryn Million.

DACC's Education Club is hoping to exceed its fundraising goal of $200.

To donate, visit <https://give.jardinlc.org/DACCEduClub>.

DACC still accepting donations for dogs and cats

DACC will continue as a drop-off location for donations to help local dogs and cats at two of the area's animal organizations, the community college said in another news release.

Area residents can stop by the DACC East Mesa campus main building, 2800 Sonoma Ranch Blvd., to donate items, which will then be given to the Animal Service Center of the Mesilla Valley (ASCMV) and ACTION Programs for Animals of Las Cruces (APA).

The items most needed for donation are used, but clean towels and blankets, dog food, cat food, leashes and collars of all sizes and toys for both dogs and cats.

Donations will be accepted until the second week of December, DACC said.

Donations will also be accepted at Bravo Mic Communications, 101 Perkins Drive, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday throughout December.

Adoptable dogs and cats, puppies and kittens can be viewed at <https://ascmv.org/adoptions/> (ASCMV) and <https://apalascruces.org/adopt/> (APA).

Sons of American Revolution remembers Boston Tea Party anniversary

By DON WILLIAMS AND DAVID CURTISS

Sons of the American Revolution, Gadsden Chapter

The Las Cruces Gadsden Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution plans to celebrate the 248th anniversary of the Boston Tea Party. The chapter will meet 11 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 11, at Hacienda de Mesilla, 1891 Avenida de Mesilla, to make final plans for the celebration.

The Dec. 16, 1773, protest against a British-imposed tax was the source of the famous colonial goal, "No taxation without representation." The Sons of Liberty in Boston led this political and mercantile protest. Their stand against the tea act was a direct challenge to England's allowing the British East India Company not to pay taxes imposed by the Townshend Acts. The colonists opposed the taxes as a violation of their rights.

Protesters destroyed a shipment of tea from the East India Company. Protesters had successfully prevented the unloading of tea in three other colonies, but the governor would not allow the tea to be returned to England.

The reaction from the British government grew into the American Revolution.

Many political protests in the ages since link themselves as historical followers of the Boston Protest of 1773.

The First Continental Congress was formed to petition the repeal of the Intolerable Acts, which were punitive laws passed by the British Parliament in 1774 following the Boston Tea Party, and further coordinated resistance to taxes not enacted by their own elected representatives.

The Boston Tea Party was a significant event in the Revolution that led to America we enjoy and serve.

As we approach the 250th anniversary of America, let us remember the patriots that gave their all and our responsibility to be good stewards of their legacy.

Honoring the Battle of Trenton

SAR Gadsden Chapter also honors the 245th anniversary of the Battle of Trenton, which took place Dec. 26, 1776, in Trenton, New Jersey.

Trenton was a key battle in the military conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and its 13 colonies in North America during the Revolutionary War.

Most American colonists rejected the legitimacy of the British Parliament to govern the 13 colonies without representation. As the morale of the Army and the public ebbed, Gen. George Washington knew a significant act was imperative to restore confidence and maintain military enlistments. His surprise attack on the Hessian garrison at Trenton was the reawakening of the spirit that reignited the hope of the colonists.

On Dec. 25, 1776, Washington led his men across the icy Delaware River and then marched his soldiers on bloodied feet for 10 miles into Trenton, where they surprised a garrison of 1,500 Hessians.

Despite losing two men crossing the river, wet gun powder, a sleet storm and frostbite, with incredible courage, Washington and his men took on and won a critical battle, a turning point in the war. At Trenton, Washington demonstrated his ingenuity and resilience as a leader, won the loyalty of his soldiers and revived the Continental Army.

The Americans dominated the fight, and the Battle of Trenton resulted in a much-needed, morale-boosting American victory, which had a massive effect on the colonial war effort. Moreover, it instilled new confidence in the Army and the Continental Congress. Washington soon after led another American victory at the Battle of Princeton.

"Saturday Night Live" cast member Pete Davidson, who lost his firefighter father during the 9/11 terrorist attack on New York, received warm critical praise for his performance in this 2020 semi-biographical comedy-drama from executive producer Judd Apatow, who also co-wrote the screenplay with Davidson. The actor stars as Scott Carlin, a 24-year-old high-school dropout who lives with his mother (Marisa Tomei) on Staten Island. Bill Burr, Bel Powley, Maude Apatow and Steve Buscemi co-star.

Movie: 42

The story of baseball icon Jackie Robinson is recounted with sincerity and reverence in director Brian Helgeland's 2013 drama. Chadwick Boseman strikes the right notes in the central role, conveying Robinson's dignity and grace as he faced massive prejudice in breaking the sport's color line. Equally good is Harrison Ford as Branch Rickey, the Brooklyn Dodgers general manager who gave Robinson huge support after hiring him. Nicole Beharie plays Robinson's wife, Rachel.

Kelly Clarkson

6 p.m. on HALL
Movie: A Very Merry Bridesmaid

Christmas Eve this year looks to be a big day in the life of Leah (Emily Osment, "The Kominsky Method"). Not only is she about to turn 30, but that date also is her brother's wedding day. Fortunately, Leah's childhood crush is back in town for the nuptials, and he is determined to do everything he can to ensure her birthday doesn't get completely overlooked in all the wedding hoopla.

6 p.m. on BET
Movie: The Jenkins Family Christmas

After burying their father following his passing earlier in the year, sisters Baneatta and Beverly (Regina Taylor, Kim Coles) vow to continue all the family traditions their dad always loved as each holiday season arrived in this 2021 drama helmed by Robin Givens. They've barely gotten started on that ambitious project, though, when a previously unknown half-sister suddenly appears and shakes things up in a big way.

7 p.m. on KVIA2
Movie: Silent Night: A Song for the World

Hugh Bonneville ("Downton Abbey") narrates this two-hour documentary that explores the creation and cultural impact of the song widely considered to be the world's most famous Christmas carol. Composed in 1818 in Salzburg, Austria, the song has been translated into 140 languages and contributed to an impromptu cease fire during World War I. Kelly Clarkson, Joss Stone, John Rhys-Davies, Katharine McPhee, Randy Jackson, Josh Groban and the Vienna Boys Choir are among the artists who appear.

8 p.m. on COMEDY
Movie: A Clüsterfünke Christmas

Former "Saturday Night Live" performers Rachel Dratch and Ana Gasteyer co-wrote this new TV-movie send-up of formulaic and schmaltzy holiday romances. The story follows a driven New York real estate executive named Holly (Vella Lovell, "Crazy Ex-Girlfriend"), who travels to a charming small town where she hopes to buy a quaint inn and transform it into a mega-resort. That will entail persuading the spinster sisters (Dratch, Gasteyer) who own the property, but Holly becomes distracted by the hot-woodsman nephew (Cheyenne Jackson) of the old ladies. Ryan McPartlin co-stars.

Something's Coming: West Side Story — A Special Edition of 20/20

Airing in conjunction with the Dec. 10, theatrical release, this new primetime special steps inside director Steven Spielberg's highly anticipated remake of the classic Broadway musical, which earned 10 Academy Awards in its original 1961 big-screen adaptation. The special includes interviews with Spielberg and cast and crew members including Rita Moreno, who won an Oscar for the 1961 film and is both a co-star and executive producer on this do-over. Additionally, several Puerto Rican actors, artists and journalists share their reflections on what impact this musical has had on their lives.

Movie: My Favorite Christmas Melody

Not that long ago, Abby (Mya) was widely regarded as a singer-songwriter with promise, but nowadays she finds herself in an unrewarding gig writing commercial jingles. When she heads home for the holidays, a local high school music teacher turns to her for help to save her school's music program, which faces budget cuts. As she pitches in, Abby regains much of her lost confidence and optimism, not to mention stumbling into some unexpected romance as well. Rainbow Sun Francks also stars in this holiday romance.

6 p.m. on LIFEMOV
Movie: Imperfect High

A follow-up to the well-received 2015 TV movie "Perfect High," this 2021 drama explores the harsh realities of teenage drug abuse, especially in terms of how peer pressure often exacerbates such behavior. The topic is presented from the perspective of Hanna Brooks (Nia Sioux), a new girl trying to fit in at Lakewood High School, where a popular student overdosed a couple of years earlier. Sherri Shepherd and Ali Skovbye also star.

7 p.m. on KDBC

Apply the ‘Spirit of Santa’ to your life year-round

By DEBBI MOORE
GLCCC CEO/President

The sound of holiday music is beginning to permeate many of our homes and businesses and reminds us that the holidays are right in front of us. The big debate this year, as I’ve witnessed on several Facebook pages and in conversations, is the “when” to decorate. Is it before or after Thanksgiving? Is it totally “taboo” to begin before Halloween? Unfortunately, there are no rules, nor do I believe there should be rules when it comes to decorating for the holidays. Whenever you choose to decorate your home, remember the “magic” of the season lies year-round within your heart. The lights, bows, trees are a simple reflection of your heart.

And so here we are, close to the end of the year and the holiday season. We all can find the “Spirit of Santa,” that magical feeling which somehow energizes us and keeps us going. Throughout the years, I’ve been asked many times “why” I collect Santas...well, it’s simple. It is the magic that this bearded, red-suited gentleman brings to the world. For a brief season in time every year, the magic replaces the negativity, pessimism and sadness with positivity, optimism and joy.

We all have the ability to apply these five simple elements of this “magic” to our lives and make a true impact in our community.

1. Magic of Making a Difference – There’s something very special of giving to a non-profit during the holiday season. This simple gesture of giving of your time and/or dollars to make a difference in someone’s life mirrors the joy of the season in so many ways. Take a moment to reach out to those organizations that make such a difference in our community. Teaching our children and grandchildren the art of “giving back” makes the holidays a perfect teachable moment.

2. Magic of Friends and Family – Although the stress of the holidays can often be overwhelming, the company of friends and family can also calm us. I always enjoy watching the proverbial “happy ending” holiday movies. While real life is not always full of happy endings, I have to say that at least for moments of magic during the holidays, they can be a reality. Whether it’s friends or family or both, connecting with those we love can brighten our lives as much as the tree lights do our homes.

3. Magic of Food – The holiday season brings such traditional foods. In New Mexico, these traditions include, but certainly are not limited to, biscochitos, tamales, posole and of course, our own pecan pies. Being raised in Oklahoma, our traditions included chicken and noodles, green bean casserole and cranberry jello salad and Aunt Bill’s Brown Candy (a popular brand in Oklahoma). The highlight of my memories growing up, however, is my aunt’s divinity and fudge. I can still hear the click of the lid on the metal tin where she kept them under layers of wax paper. It’s not so much I remember the tastes of the food, once again, it’s the magic of the moment.

4. Magic of Shopping – Shopping

during the holiday season can, depending on its definition, be calming or stressful. For years, my daughter and I would be the first in line at many of the stores at the crack of dawn to catch all those bargains. In retrospect, I don’t remember the bargains, the money we saved or the crowds we encountered. What I do remember is the “magic” of the morning. Spending time with my daughter, laughing as we stood in line or conversing over hot coffee or hot chocolate. Yes, we were often cold as we stood outside, but now, those memories keep me warm. P.S. Always remember to shop local – your investment makes a big difference in our community.

5. Magic of Laughter – One thing most lovable about Santa is his “Ho, Ho, Ho” you hear almost constantly whenever you see him. It always makes me smile and laugh myself. In my collection of Santas I have ones that sing, dance and read stories. There are times when I drive my family nuts because I get them all singing, dancing and reading at the same time...and then I find myself laughing. Laugh with someone this holiday season...it’ll make your day.

Be strong. Be kind. Be giving. Be supportive. Be available. All of these define what “being a community” really is. Our wonderful, special community which, while we often have differences, comes together to overcome. Together we turn every challenge into an opportunity. The key is that we do this... TOGETHER!

Am I “over the top” for the holiday, Santa, ribbons, bows and all the colors they bring? You bet I am! The sounds, the sights, the colors...all come together to create the “Magic of the Season.” It’s my tradition that as the season concludes for another year, I keep a Santa out all year, a simple gesture to remind me that the magic of Santa can be year-round, if we only believe. In my version of those famous words, “Yes, my friends, there is a Santa Claus. Enjoy the magic of the season.”

To wrap up this year, I want to take a few moments to thank our chair, Jed Fanning, for his leadership, as we all once again navigated another challenging year. On behalf of the Board of Directors and the Chamber staff, we thank you for your expertise, leadership and professionalism as you’ve lead the Board of Directors and the Chamber through this year. You represent all that’s good, kind and caring in business...Thank you!

Mesilla Valley Pharmacy, 227 S. Main St, celebrated their Grand Opening on Saturday, October 16 with a ribbon cutting to welcome them as a new member to the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce.

On Monday, November 15, the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce welcomed Soroptimist International of Las Cruces as a new member.

Chamber offers meaningful benefits

My name is Mary Iadicicco. My husband Jerry and I moved from New Jersey to Las Cruces. We came to Las Cruces visiting friends whom my husband had worked with. We originally were going to retire but decided to leave family and friends and start a new life because life in New Jersey was very expensive. We loved the people and the culture. Being in the insurance industry for over 30 years my husband thought it was about time that I start my own insurance agency.

In April of 2006, my first week in Las Cruces, as my husband was in New Jersey trying to sell a home, I knew no one in the business industry. The first thing I did was call the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce. I had joined the Chamber and the following week, the Chamber came out and did a ribbon cutting. There were many chamber members and Ambassadors that came out to congratulate me.

I was so impressed with the Ambassadors with their blue jackets and pins that I immediately contacted one of the members that I would like to become one. I was inducted as an Ambassador and that is where my journey begins.

I had joined various committees and became very involved. I started developing relationships by being involved in the Chamber. I spent thousands of dollars on advertising which was good to a point but due to my membership with the Chamber, my business grew.

In the beginning I went to every luncheon, Business After Hours and as time permitted joined several committees. I am not a forceful person to go up to a person and introduce myself for all my life I was extremely shy. I attended my first business after hours with my blue jacket and my pins and people were coming up to me. I started feeling more confident and was introducing myself with my business cards in my hands. I not only developed business relationships but personal relationships that probably will last a lifetime.

After 15 years, I still attend the events and I am still involved with committees for this is the lifeline of my business as well as getting together with new and old friends. I could say and will continue to say that the Chamber of Commerce is an organization that will help grow and continue to thrive any business. There are so many resources available from the Chamber. If people want to see their business grow and being recognized by the community, they need to join.

My membership with the Chamber has been such a beautiful experience. I would never have experienced such emotions such as getting involved with events such as Dress A Child. Where else would I experience (before COVID) a big hug from a six-year-old girl thanking me by helping her shop. The monetary generosity of the community was overwhelming. This little girl with ragged clothes purchased her first new items. The emotion of seeing a veteran, as volunteers handing out fruit and drinks, walking with prosthesis at the Bataan Memorial March for 26 miles was more than I can describe in words. Also, meeting with the Governor at Las Cruces Day in Santa Fe or giving my appreciation to the military from Thanks Team WSMR.

So being part of the Greater Las Cruces of Commerce is like being part of a family.

On Friday, October 15, The Kassondra Saavedra Agency, 400 N. Telshor Blvd Ste. A, celebrated their Grand Opening with a ribbon cutting welcoming them as a member of the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce.

Leadership Las Cruces 27th class session day

Members of the Leadership Las Cruces class has been learning all about what the region has to offer. One of the activities is they visited Spaceport America to see what is going on to spur private space travel.

The beginning for the day was a little more hectic than normal. I woke up a tiny bit late, on account of me pressing the “stop” button instead of the “snooze” button. I had to rush to get to Home Instead by 7:45. Believe it or not, I actually got there in time so my team and I could get the swag bags ready to go. Thankfully, we got them ready to go before everyone else got there. Just before we loaded up the bus, James was handing out papers for the paper plane competition on the bus.

Halfway into the bus ride we started the paper plane competition. Everyone did their best and had fun throwing and crashing their planes into Ed most of the time. The people that came out on top were: 3rd place- Alex, 2nd Place Jenn, and 1st Place went to Cory! Finally we get to Spaceport and were told right away by Cory, that we couldn’t take pictures on the premises, or else. I was too scared to ask what would be the consequences.

We got off of the bus and walked into the high security Spaceport entrance. As we got closer we could smell burgers and hush puppies, oddly enough. As we walked into Gaia, the main lounge, in absolute amazement. Looking around at the exquisite layout and furniture and this super cool light up walkway, which made me feel like Michael Jackson in the Billie Jean music video. If you’re wondering, I didn’t moonwalk unfortunately. We resumed our tour to the second floor. We got to go into the control room with these extremely long monitors and had a really good speaker who broke down a lot of the equipment in the room. Also the speaker pretty much broke down how the day went whenever they did the first flight with Richard Branson.

We made our way into the hangar and that’s when we actually got to see the spacecraft for the first time and it was such a sight. We also got to see firsthand what the crew was doing to the vehicle, from cleaning and making any repairs necessary for the next flight. The next thing we got to see was the flight simulator, where I got to be copilot. The simulator was in a dark room behind a massive curtain which was also located in the hanger. As I got up to be copilot I was just amazed at all the buttons and switches, the pilot just switched and pressed everything with ease while describing what he is doing. Although it was is a simulation, I was still amazed at what all went on and the view of the video game like simulator.

We made our way to the Spaceport tourist area to meet up with speaker, Chris Lopez. That’s where we received our boy/girl scout badges. The gentleman enlightened us on how things work out there on an investor’s standpoint and how Doña Ana and Sierra counties benefit from the Spaceport. It was fairly intriguing. After that Cory and Brock showed us what exactly a customer would go through on the four-day journey before the two hour flight from Earth to space and back. To say the least it was incredible to get a lot of the highlights and details that go on behind the scenes. Ending that half of the day with delicious lunch and some pictures before napping on our way back to Las Cruces.

Getting to Visit Las Cruces, we made our way to the second floor where the board room was located. We got an insightful presentation from Albert Herrera, about how these major events like the Enchilada Tournament, Gus Macker, so on so forth, bring in people from all over to experience Las Cruces. All of these events bring money for our town to do more events for us locals and non-locals to enjoy.

We walked to Little Toad Creek, and went to back patio to sample some of the beers that they brew. One of my favorites was the watermelon with jalapeño and most memorable. After we got our samples in we had an informal speech about the art district from Susan Cabello. It was awesome to know that there is a designated area that art is dedicated to. Also that we have our own artists to promote and showcase instead have having to bring people that are not local.

In closing, Tourism Day was definitely a day to remember and so much to take in. There were far more little and some big things I'm missing out on this "summary." These are the things that stood out to me and I'm sure everyone else. I just wanted to say thank you to the speakers and organizations for giving us their time. This day was certainly a day to remember, fun, and informative.

movie review

BY JAY BOBBIN

‘A Christmas Story’ makes an early seasonal appearance

“You'll shoot your eye out.”

Whether you're a holiday-movie connoisseur or just a casual viewer, you likely know where that line comes from and who (time and again) it's directed toward. Fans of “A Christmas Story” needn't worry – it still will get its traditional 24-hour marathon starting on Christmas Eve on TBS and TNT – but the richly nostalgic 1983 comedy classic also makes an earlier TNT appearance this year on Monday, Dec. 6.

Based on the writings of humorist Jean Shepherd, who narrates the picture, the Bob Clark-directed tale follows eager young Ralphie (a perfectly cast Peter Billingsley) through a long-ago Christmas season when he has his heart set on one very particular gift: a Red Ryder BB gun, which everyone from his mother (Melinda Dillon) to his teacher (Tedde Moore) to a department-store Santa Claus (Jeff Gillen) warns him about. For the specific warning, check the first sentence of this article again.

However, there's plenty else competing for Ralphie's attention during the holidays. Take his younger brother Randy's (Ian Petrella) unique way of eating a meal. Or the never-ending battle that their gruff father (Darren McGavin) wages against the household furnace. Or school pal Flick (Scott Schwartz), who accepts a “triple dog dare” and ends up getting his tongue stuck to a frozen pole. Or the decoder ring that has a disappointing result for Ralphie when he deciphers the secret message conveyed by the “Little Orphan Annie” radio program.

“A Christmas Story”

"Physician, heal thyself!" is a familiar maxim, and this comedy series wraps its third season with a finale that could be a firefighter's variation on that advice. The story line finds the Station 24 team responding to a call and away from their station house when a second fire breaks out at another location: specifically, at their station house. Kevin Heffernan, Steve Lemme and Marcus Henderson star in "Fire at the Fire Station."

9 p.m. on HBO
Music Box

John Maggio's music documentary "Mr. Saturday Night" chronicles the meteoric career ascent of Australian entrepreneur Robert Stigwood, who was so inspired by a magazine article on the Brooklyn night club scene that he made a movie about it. That movie, "Saturday Night Fever," became nothing less than a cultural touchstone for 1977, turning actor John Travolta into a global superstar in the process. The platinum-selling soundtrack also gave a shot of adrenaline to disco, thanks to four number-one hits from the Bee Gees.

Filmmaker turns personal struggles into short film 'Fowl'

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

As Covid-19 forced a worldwide shutdown in early 2020, New Mexico State University Creative Media Institute (CMI) assistant professor and professional film director Ross Marks was "feeling particularly stifled creatively and isolated." And he was still reeling from the April 2019 death of his close friend, mentor and father-in-law, Mark Medoff.

With time on his hands because of the forced isolation of the pandemic, Marks began turning his memories of Medoff into a "little piece" he was writing for himself.

The "little piece" became a screenplay, which Marks shared with fellow CMI assistant professor and longtime filmmaking partner Mitch Fowler.

"Fowl's" main characters are Stiff Miller, who is bitter and angry because he is suffering from kidney failure and is on oxygen and in a wheelchair, and Louie Hernandez, who is sweet and innocent and suffers from the onset of dementia, Marks said.

Stiff and Louie are

"the two sides of Mark (Medoff): 'I can't believe I'm dying,' and 'OK, I guess I'm coming to the end,'" Marks said.

Along with Medoff, Marks said he was thinking about NMSU professor and longtime Las Cruces actor Dick Rundell as he was writing the script. Rundell, who died in May 2018, was a close friend of Medoff. They had worked together on many plays and films, including Rio Grande Theatre's 2015 production of "Waiting for Godot," in which they both starred.

"I heard their voices very clearly in my head," Marks said.

He cast Christopher James Hagen, 82, of Santa Fe as Stiff and Bruce Klefstad, 84, of Phoenix as Louie, Marks said, because the two professional actors came as close as he could get to his memories of Medoff and Rundell.

Marks said he saw birds "as a third character in the film" because he remembered seeing birds at Mesilla Valley Hospice feeders when he visited Medoff, and because they represent the transition from life to death.

In the film, Stiff and Louie are together in an assisted-living facility in the time of Covid. Their only visitor is a nurse, played by Marissa Bond, who has acted in other local plays and films, including "I, Custer," a one-person show which Medoff directed at Las Cruces Community Theatre in 2016.

The film's title is also a play on the word "foul," reflective of Stiff Miller's foul mouth and bad temper, Marks said.

In one scene, Louie finds eggs in a bird's nest that has fallen to the ground. He is "overtaken with rage," Marks said, and destroys the eggs,

Arts Council features The Border Artists in 'Blue Skies' show this month

By GREG SMITH

Executive Director
Doña Ana Arts Council

The Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC) will showcase The Border Artists in "Blue Skies," Dec. 3-29 at the DAAC Arts and Cultural Center, 250 W. Amador Ave.

Patrons will see art representing a diversity of materials, narratives, perspectives and experiences reaching beyond the challenges of 2020.

The Border Artists organization was formed in the late 1980s to increase visibility and recognition for artists in southern New Mexico. Finding much success, the group continued to add members with diverse backgrounds and organized as a non-profit association in 1995. All members are residents of New Mexico and El Paso, and they exhibit locally and nationally in juried shows.

Photographers Emmitt Booher, Storm Sermay and David Sorenson are all well known in the region. Booher was the first artist selected for the artist-in-residence for the Organ Mountains-Desert Peaks National Monument (OMDPNM) in 2016. In 2013, Sorenson was artist-in-residence at the Bundaberg Regional Art Gallery in Queensland, Australia in conjunction with an international exchange exhibition between galleries in Las Cruces and Queensland. Sermay's work has been shown in the El Paso International Airport and she is known for her work in black and white.

The exhibition will also feature the work of painters Tauna Cole, Sherry Doil-Carter, Cassandra Lockwood, Rosemary Mcloughlin, Jo-an Smith, Zoe Spiliotis, Nolan Winkler and Jean Wilkey, along with sculptors Suzanne Kane and Andres Nagem, and clay artist Terry Wolfe, mixed-media artists Jeanne Rundell and Linda Elkins along with jewelry artist Margaret Berrier.

Cole, a local artist and professor at NMSU, often uses metaphors and symbolism to reflect self, identity and family. Doil-Carter, an art teacher at Alma d'arte Charter High School, uses collage, printmaking, sculpture, mixed media and painting to create her work. Lockwood was also selected for OMDPNM residence for May 2018.

After recent vision loss,

'Daddy Long Legs' spins charming musical web of heart and hope

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

There is an Old-World charm about Black Box Theatre's (BBT) current production of "Daddy Long Legs" that you feel as soon as you enter the theater and hear accompanist Barbara Toth's beautiful piano music.

It reminds us that this is live theater, with a cast of real people and a living, breathing, working crew at the piano, behind the curtain and in the light booth above.

That charm continues as actors Cristina Zermeno and David Arias enter the stage and you see Autumn Gieb's wonderful costumes and the scenic and lighting design of Peter Herman, which creates a closed and separate world for each character — but also a matching set of the classics in each room and the paper, pen and inkwell that will bridge the gap between them.

Through the images that director Nikka Diemer and these two talented actors create as they write and read letters to each other, we feel that space that lies between them: He is a powerful and wealthy benefactor; she is a penniless orphan blessed with intelligence and drive. They are drawn together by a need for human connection and a love of literature and knowledge that will not be denied.

As they speak and sing — many of the songs are a continuation of the text, adding rhyme, rhythm and music to the spoken word — there is a memory of simpler times. They communicate with each other only through their letters, which convey their deepest sorrows and greatest hopes.

This is Zermeno's first performance at BBT, and her first lead in a musical. She has performed in a number of shows in El Paso theaters, and you will enjoy her performance as Jerusha, with the music and lyrics of Paul Gordon and book by John Caird, based on the novel by Jean Webster.

Arias is a BBT veteran, with performances in "La Marquise du Chatalet Defends Her Life Tonight," "Little Shop of Horrors," "A New Brain" and several other shows in the last few years. He brings a sweetness to Jervis Pendleton/Daddy Long Legs in his letters and his songs that makes you ache for the two characters to read between the lines and cross the space between them.

I must say, my favorite of the cast and crew biographies comes from the show's musical director, Barbara Toth: "My daddy won a piano in a poker game when I was just 4, and the rest is history."

Her music is the perfect complement to the work of Arias and Zermeno and the crowning touch on a production you will enjoy.

"Daddy Long Legs" concludes this weekend with performances at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 2; 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Dec. 3-4; and a 2:30 p.m. matinee Sunday, Dec. 5, at BBT, 430 N. Main St. Downtown.

Tickets are $15 regular admission; $12 for students and seniors over age 65; and $10 for all seats for the Thursday, Dec. 2, bargain night performance only.

For tickets, visit <http://no-strings.org/> or call the theater at 575-523-1223.

Mcloughlin is back creating vibrant paintings and exhibiting again. “With my recent vision loss, I am now on a new journey,” Mcloughlin said. “I am hopeful that in this new way of seeing it will be a journey of discovery and of painting whatever life may inspire.”

After her recent retrospective show in the gallery, Smith will show more work inspired by the region’s rich colors, textures and shapes. El Paso artist and El Paso Community College Art Professor Spiliotis has created public artworks and murals in New Mexico, Texas and Pennsylvania. Her work is based on mathematical principles, and she explores color rein ways you might not normally expect.

Janice Cook, a full-time potter for 50 years, works in porcelain, enjoying the choreography of her shapes and the colors of the slips and stains she uses to decorate. Amanda Jaffe also works with porcelain and draws inspiration from the landscape and culture of New Mexico and Montana. Her relief porcelain wall tiles are frequently abstract with landscape references and contain ceramic objects, including boats, flowers and leaves. Suzanne Kane is inspired by unusual seeds and structural plants that endure and survive in the Southwest. Her work often reflects resilience, persistence, toughness, durability, tenacity and adaptability of nature. Andres Nagem’s most prominent local work is the “Refuge” sculpture installed in 1995 in Lions Park, but he also produced a series of ceramic tile murals at Court Youth Center. Clay artist Terry Wolfe will also participate in the show.

Linda Elkins, one of the group’s mixed media artists, is guided by an intuitive creation process and her work includes handmade books and journals. Jeanne Rundell began painting 12 years ago, creating wild, brightly colored teapots known as Dysfunctional Teapots. Today, she is known for her wildly colorful contemporary paintings of farm equipment.

Margaret Berrier rounds out the group exhibition with jewelry. She became fascinated by archaeology and nature and has studied the ancient cultures of Central America and the Southwest for almost 25 years. She utilizes her fascination with these cultures and nature to create pieces that have “layers” to the images she is incorporating.

thinking, “If I can’t live, nothing should.”

In addition to writing the script, Marks directed “Fowl,” with Fowler serving as director of photography. They enlisted Los Angeles-based filmmaker Brian Espinosa as executive producer, Las Cruces artist Tiffany Del Guidice as scenic designer and CMI graduate and Albuquerque filmmaker Keagan Karnes and CMI student and Las Cruces filmmaker Kyle Ivy (who also served as Covid compliance officer) as co-producers.

CMI student Angel Sanchez is the film’s editor and Savannah Willingham, who has collaborated with Marks and Fowler on other films, is costume designer. The crew also includes CMI students Nathan Lefever, key grip; Luis Gutierrez, gaffer; Mario Martinez, swing; and Ralph Diaz, sound mixer/boom operator. CMI graduate Orlando Martos is the film’s first assistant camera operator.

“Fowl” was shot over two days last November inside St. Andrew’s Episcopal Church (a hallway was converted into a bedroom) and the courtyard of Jud Wright’s Las Cruces home, Marks said.

“It was totally worth it,” Fowler said about making the movie during a pandemic and having to follow strict safety protocol.

Hiring crew members who are NMSU film students made the film “an extension of the classroom,” Fowler said.

For many of the students, he said, it was their first real job on a film set, and they were treated as professionals.

“It was an accelerated learning experience,” Fowler said.

The 21-minute, 16-second dark comedy was released earlier this year and has already won several awards, including taking top spot in the Studio City Film Festival in Hollywood, California.

It will be featured in the 2022 Las Cruces International Film Festival.

Marks, whose other directing credits include “Walking With Herb,” “The Twilight of the Golds,” “Homage” and “Princess,” said he is in discussions with a Los Angeles producer about turning the film into a television series.

Since completing the film, Marks has joined the Mesilla Valley Hospice board of directors.

Buttonholing people, witnessing for your faith are not the same deal

Let's call him David. He wore buttons on his shirts that said "Are you saved?" and "Jesus is the answer." He had a sensible haircut and an awkward smile. We avoided him most of the time, or ducked into another hallway when we saw him coming. Sometimes, we would take him on merely to pester him, not because we were willing to listen to his rehearsed speech.

He wasn't a bad person, but mostly he talked at us, not with us. Mutual conversation wasn't an option. It was one-sided with David, who felt it necessary to convince us of his religious positions. He had the tracts to prove it, little booklets that showed us clearly how we were going to hell if we didn't believe the way he did, or the way he had been taught.

It wasn't that I or my friends didn't care about our faith. We often discussed religion. Everybody I knew went to church. Most of us had been through catechetical classes and had learned the basics of our various churches' positions on Christian faith. It was the quiet '50s. Eisenhower was in the White House and all was right with the world. No wars and new highways made most of us feel safe and prosperous, although the communist threat hovered over us at all times. We were convinced that we would have to stand up for the faith if the Russians invaded and tried to force us to become communist. We were prepared to make our witness.

We didn't buttonhole people to rap about our faith. We didn't try to force our friends to make a commitment, especially since most of them went to church, even if not the same church we attended.

Perhaps we didn't think, deep-down, that our churches held absolutely right beliefs that we had to sell to others. There was room for debate. Maybe there was insecurity involved in a person like David; maybe he needed the support of others who believed exactly as he did.

As I grew older, I did stand up for my faith. But I became ever more convinced of the wrongness of hard-nosed and in-your-face attempts to sell faith to others. What does it accomplish? You cannot force belief on anyone; in fact, the attempt to do so almost invariably backfires. If your target acquiesces and gives up in face of the onslaught of argument, it won't last long anyway. It's like a heavy coat someone told you to put on when the weather was mild. You'll take it off as soon as possible.

I was one of three people of over 300 graduates of my high-school class to enter ministry as a profession. Some people might think this would have pushed me in the direction of being like David, but it did not. It did not push my friends who entered ministry to do so either. Perhaps I have been more reticent than I might have been about discussing faith with others. I don't attempt to force belief on anybody because it doesn't work. I never wanted to be like

David.

I am not a covert non-believer masquerading as a priest of the church, but I respect others so as not to try to force them into positions they don't arrive at through their own struggle — even as I have. Faith is a struggle. I truly wish more people would see the beauty of the Christian faith I profess, but that's not up to me. All I can do is invite you to come and see.

Expert: Don't snooze on holiday shopping

By CARLOS ANDRES LÓPEZ
Communications Specialist
NMSU News Team

With the holiday season just around the corner, an economics professor at New Mexico State University said the time to shop for gifts is now.

Christopher Erickson, head of the Department of Economics, Applied Statistics and International Business in NMSU's College of Business, urged consumers not to delay holiday shopping this year and warned they may face fewer goods and higher prices at stores due to the strained supply chain.

"There's a shortage of goods on the shelf, so it's hard to find products. And the products that are there are not going to be put on sale," Erickson said. "If you're shopping for Christmas, you want to buy early."

The culprit responsible for global supply chain disruptions is not the Grinch, Erickson explained, but the 20-month-old pandemic fueled by the relentless virus that causes Covid-19.

The chain reaction caused by Covid-19 continues to tumble, and it has been nearly two years since the virus hit home.

Supply chain disruptions have hit hard in the United States and other major supplying countries that the U.S. relies on for products, including China, Erickson said. The shortage of goods on the shelves, he added, is also causing a second problem: inflation.

New Mexico State University economics professor Christopher Erickson says consumers should shop early.

"We've seen inflation, and that inflation is being driven primarily by the supply chain disruptions in the economy," he said.

The pandemic has also deeply impacted employment in various industries, according to Erickson. One issue hampering economic recovery in the U.S. is a worker shortage resulting from individuals who lost their jobs early in the pandemic but have yet to seek re-employment.

Nationally, Erickson said, employment remains 3 percent below its peak before the onset of the pandemic. That figure is double in New Mexico, he added.

"That disruption to employment has knock-on effects," he explained, "because if you don't have people working in factories, you don't have goods being produced."

Erickson cited several reasons for the worker shortages. Individuals with children, for example, are hesitant to rejoin the workforce because of limited child care resources. Others, he said, are staying away from work simply out of concern they'll become infected with Covid-19.

Low wages could also be a major factor, Erickson said.

"Ultimately, if employers are willing to pay more, they would get more workers," he said. "One of the issues you have is that labor markets are very slow to adjust. And this has been, and is, what drives the business cycle."

Erickson said there's little to no proof that extended unemployment benefits have swayed people from returning to work.

"It sounds like it would be correct, but the evidence just isn't there," he said. "A number of states ended their extended unemployment compensation programs early. In those states, compared to other states, there seems to be no real difference in workers returning to their jobs."

Erickson said the supply chain bottlenecks have the potential to devastate small businesses. Large retailers, like Walmart, have more resources to weather the disruptions, he explained, and are paying premium prices to ensure their products are being transported and unloaded as quickly as possible.

"Historically, it was unheard of for a company like Walmart to lease their own ships for transportation, but now they're doing it," Erickson said. "The reason why they're doing it is because they want to make sure they have products for Christmas. Small retailers can't do that and are at a competitive disadvantage because of that."

Erickson said the pandemic's destructive economic effects may continue until Covid-19 is brought under control. But he expects the kinks in the supply chain to be resolved over the next few months — just not in time for the holidays.

In the meantime, time is running out to purchase gifts for loved ones.

"I will tell you I've taken my own advice," Erickson said. "Between my wife and I, we have seven grandchildren, and we've already done our Christmas shopping for them."

If you can't find what you're looking for in stores, Erickson suggested shopping online for a greater variety of products.

"There's always things you can find online that you can't find locally," he added, "but that might be truer this Christmas than as typical."

BULLETIN REPORT

The City of Las Cruces has named Elizabeth Teeters as director of its Economic Development Department (EDD).

Teeters joined the city in 2018 after moving to Las Cruces from Missouri, first as policy analyst for administration. She has been the business development administrator in EDD since February 2020.

"Elizabeth has been a valuable team member here at the City of Las Cruces, and based on her experience in economic development and her previous roles at the city, she will thrive as economic development director," City Manager Ifo Pili said. "We look forward to what she will bring to the city and supporting her and the department in their efforts to bring prosperity to our community."

Teeters' career background includes working for a regional planning commission in Missouri, first as a county economic developer, then as executive director. She has a bachelor's in music education from Ohio University and a master's in community planning from the University of Cincinnati.

Aggie women bond during holiday trip, have big goals for season

“We will put our defense first, work hard and our offense will come,” said Tayelin Grays, a senior guard from Dayton, Texas.

Head coach Brooke Atkinson, now in her fifth year leading the program and 13th year overall at the school, said fans can expect the team to give its best effort each and every game.

“We will play hard,” Atkinson said. “We will defend. We will be an exciting team to watch. I think we have depth. If one person is having an off night, another person can step up. We always want to be the toughest team and the hardest working team on the floor.”

Last season, the Aggies had to deal with some of the most stringent Covid protocols in the nation and didn't play any true home games at the Pan American Center. Instead they played two “home” series in El Paso, 45 miles away.

They ended up playing an abbreviated schedule and went 6-6 in the WAC and 9-12 overall.

The Aggies are off to a 3-2 start this season. They spent the Thanksgiving weekend in Puerto Rico at the San Juan Shootout. There, they played Louisiana State, a member of the powerful Southeastern Conference, and Tennessee Tech. The Aggies lost 72-52 to LSU after leading by one at halftime but bounced back to beat Tennessee Tech 66-54.

“We have a tough schedule,” Atkinson said. “That's why you build it into the nonconference — to get better, to learn. When we get into league, that's what will matter.”

After returning from Puerto Rico, the Aggie women were scheduled to play I-10 rival UTEP on Wednesday, Dec. 1, but the game was postponed because of “positive Covid-

NMSU football hires Kill as coach

BULLETIN REPORT

New Mexico State University football is entering a new era.

NMSU Athletics Director Mario Moccia announced that the school has hired Jerry Kill, 60, to be the Aggies' 35th head football coach.

Over 23 years as a head coach at the NCAA Division II, FCS and FBS levels, Kill has compiled a 154-101 overall record with six bowl appearances.

Kill is mostly known for his stint as the University of Minnesota's coach. During a five-year run, he guided the Golden Gophers to three consecutive bowl appearances in 2012-14. In 2014, he was named the Big 10 Coach of the Year and guided the Gophers to their first New Year's Day bowl game in more than 50 years.

To build your new golf game, you need to identify your swing basics

As we approach year-end, many of us are looking forward to a new year and a new golf season. While we are blessed to live in a town where we can play golf all year long, there is a difference between just “playing” and working to make major improvements to your game. The next few months is when you can get it done. If you want your golf game to move to a new, higher level in the coming year you will need to have three skill sets that are unshakable. One is a solid, reliable golf swing that you can count on under pressure. The second is an efficient short game that gets results in the scoring zone. And three, you need a high degree of mental excellence where you compete strongly, think properly and are unflappable. In the last game improvement article, we addressed the short game from 60 yards in, leaving putting for later. Today we're dealing with finding a golf swing that produces the results you want, and holds up under the self-imposed pressure of wanting to measure up to your expectations.

Those of you who have ever had a lesson from Hall of Fame Coach Herb Wimberly can attest to the fact that he always emphasized the set-up as a paramount foundation for the proper golf swing. Most mistakes with the golf swing happen even before you take the club away from the ball. It's in the set-up, meaning your grip, your posture, your stance, your ball position and your routine. When you watch the pros (men and women) closely you see they almost invariably step into the stance from the right and from behind the ball. They place the club behind the ball first, aim the clubface and then take their stance. That's because the aim will probably determine their shot. Aim the clubface, then prepare for the shot. Most pros first visualize their shot by standing behind the ball, facing the target.

You should do the same by imagining and picturing the shot in your mind's eye. If you fail to do that, you're not giving yourself a realistic chance.

There are lots of reasons for mishit golf shots. You could be misaligned relative to the target. You could be swaying back and forth or bobbing up and down. Or perhaps so anxious and tense that your movements are jerky and uncoordinated. If you'd like to figure out what your club is doing to produce a bad shot, you must understand that there are exactly five dynamic variables to account for when you swing. These are: clubhead path (to the ball), clubhead speed (including acceleration), face angle at impact, direction of attack (steepness, up or down) and the effective loft of the club at impact. (As for ball flight, there are also nine specific shot variations, such as a “pull fade,” but we will discuss that at a future date.) The actual loft of the club (e.g. a 10.5 degree driver) is important, but the same other dynamics are there regardless of loft. If you develop the discipline to become aware and sensitive to those five variables, you will see progress in your golf swing.

The hard part of the five dynamic variables lies in the manner in which you make your swing — whether the path, angle, attack, loft and speed are going to produce a nice shot. When the results are disappointing, it's time to check for swing flaws. Once you have determined where the difficulty is located (kinda like medicine), then it's time to consult an expert to help you with developing the more correct body movements to get the clubhead to the position it should be at the right speed. That means your local PGA teaching pro. There is no substitute. Some folks are challenged to improve their kines-thetic ability, which is simply the bodily sense of performing an athletically proper move to hit a golf ball, or anything else. For older adults just learning the golf swing can be as awkward and overwhelming as learning a foreign language. Stick with it. It's not too late.

the University of New Mexico at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 3 and then will host the Lobos at the Pan Am at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 5.

Of course, conditions can always change with the ever-evolving Covid pandemic, but players and coaches say they are super stoked to be able to play games again at the Pan Am in front of ultra-supportive Aggie fans.

"It's really nice to be back at home and have some consistency," Atkinson said. "We are staying in the same beds, have the same routine every day. Last year, we were in a different hotel or resort. There was no consistency, except for the Covid situation."

Grays also said playing in front of Aggie fans should make a difference this year.

"Last year was difficult," she said. "We couldn't play in front of our fans. Our fans really mean a lot to us. Just being able to play in the Pan Am, we missed out on that big time (last season).

"It's a great environment to be able to play in front of our fans again," she said.

Senior Janessa Johnson grew up in Las Cruces and starred at Las Cruces High School, where she averaged 11.7 points per game and 1.9 steals as a senior.

She was a regular at the Pan Am when she was growing up and got to meet plenty of players over the years.

"Just being able to come back to my hometown and be able to play for them, words can't explain it," Johnson said.

Johnson missed all of last year with an injury and played two years before that at Cochise College in Arizona.

Johnson and Grays both say the women have their eyes set on winning the WAC championship this year and going to the NCAA tournament. It won't be easy.

The Aggies were picked to finish seventh in the conference in the pre-season coaches poll and sixth by the media.

"We want to get better each day in practice and not look too far ahead," Atkinson said when asked about any goals for the season. "Every game is a tough game. We have to show up and do our best."

Johnson said the team is close and always tries to pick each other up, calling it a "sisterhood."

"We stick with each other when times get rough," Johnson said. "If things don't go our way, we keep our heads up and stick with each other. We always have each other's backs."

Johnson said the trip to Puerto Rico will help the team bond even more.

"I think it is a really good experience to play harder teams like this," she said. "I think it will help us more in our conference."

Santos Treviño, South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) Southern Regional Operations Manager, was recognized at the October 2021 SCSWA Board Meeting for his work during the flooding in La Union, New Mexico.

"During the recent State of Emergency in La Union, where a weather event led to significant erosion and flood damage to the community, he proactively supported the residents' needs and those of the Dona Ana County staff coordinating the Emergency Response," said Rafael Leos, SCSWA deputy director. "His dedication and willingness to step into an emergency such as this exemplifies the responsibility SCSWA employees have as public servants to our community." While Treviño has been with SCSWA only for three years, he has been in the solid waste industry for over 22 years. Starting in the private sector with Waste Connections in 1999 as a collections route driver servicing southern NM, Treviño worked his way up from driver

After working in the Permian Basin and Haynesville shale formations, he came home to Las Cruces to raise his son and continue a career that could support his family.

"We were fortunate to gain a solid waste employee of his caliber and experience," said Leos. At SCSWA, Treviño started as solid waste driver in 2018. In August 2020, he was promoted into the role of Southern Regional Operations Manager, where Treviño plans and directs, manages, and oversees collection operations for the City of Sunland Park and the Community Collection sites in Anthony, La Mesa, and La Union, NM. "I want to thank the Board members, the SCSWA administration for the recognition, but I want to also thank all of our attendants and drivers, specifically Raul Guzman, Gilbert Jimenez, Eddie Ruiz, Eddie Sanchez, George Segobia, Juan Saenz, Geno Angel, Mayra Cano, and especially Rafael Leos for his help and guidance through the community relief efforts after the flooding," said Treviño. "Without everyone's help, it would have been a much harder task to complete."
