Gamers take their lives and relationships into the virtual world in The CW's 'Dead Pixels'

They may not function all that well in reality but the video gamers in "Dead Pixels" are titans of their virtual world.

Premiering Tuesday, Aug. 18, on The CW, the half-hour comedy from the U.K. and writer/ creator Jon Brown ("Succession," "Veep") follows the daily lives – real and online – of three gamer pals: Meg (Alexa Davies, "Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again"), an office worker who has no qualms about leaving a date to help defend a burning castle; Nicky (Will Merrick, "Poldark"), a fellow office drone and uber-devoted gamer; and Usman (Sargon Yelda, "Strike"), a stay-at-home dad who made a plywood lid for his child's playpen so he can game in peace.

All three have things missing in their lives and themselves that they find in varying degrees in the world of "Kingdom Scrolls," an online fantasy game. And their avatars are expressions of how they see themselves - or how they want to see themselves.

In Meg's case, that character is Greta, a muscular hunchback and fearless warrior.

"I think it's across all games, really, just that feeling of ... inadequacy in real life that is then kind of remedied by getting to step into this other world and be, in Meg's case, a hunchback who can clobber anything to death and feel what she likes," Davies says with a laugh. "Meg's avatar, Greta, just is kind of covered in armor and is just the definite kind of aggressive front which translates into her real life as well and there's a real kind of need to display a very strong exterior."

Nicky occupies a character named Moric the Unwavering, which Merrick explains is the antithesis of Nicky's inadequate, retiring self.

"I had a real clear idea in my head that Nicky would be a very different person himself, almost a different personality when he was playing the game," the British actor says. "He's really vocal, he's really chatty, he's very dry and sarcastic but he has a wit and he has a sense of humor. And then as soon as he leaves that world and goes into work or goes into a more social real world environment, he really recedes and becomes very quiet and muted and keeps to himself and keeps his head down."

"I think like Meg and Nicky and Usman, they're a pretty big deal in 'Kingdom Scrolls,' " he continues, "I guess you'd call them (three) of the elders. They've been around and people look up to them in the game. They're high level, they're dangerous and they get stuff done, so I think that he's a totally different guy away from the monitor."

Both actors say Meg and Nicky are indispensable to each other and likely wouldn't be playing the game if it weren't for the other. But as to whether that could lead to romance, Davies was noncommittal

"There are moments there where you think: will they, won't they?" she says. "But I don't know if they ever will because at the same time I feel this kind of like brotherly/sisterly vibe. But on top of everything, I think they really kind of compete with each other in the game and also in real life. There is a need to always better the other."

"THE OUTPOST"

CNN anchor Jake Tapper's best seller aboit the Battle of Kamdesh makes an intense and excellent movie in the hands of film criticturned-filmmaker (and West Point graduate and military veteran) Rod Lurie. It tells the true story of a Ú.S. unit stationed in the midst of three mountains in Afghanistan, where the soldiers become targets of the Taliban and defend themselves in a monumental battle that largely was - as indicated by the subtitle of Tapper's book – "An Untold Story of American Valor." Scott Eastwood (Clint's son), Orlando Bloom and Caleb Landry Jones (whose real-life counterpart, Ty Carter, is among the veterans featured in the film) lead the cast, which also includes other relatives of famous individuals: Milo Gibson (son of Mel), James Jagger (son of Mick), Will Attenborough (grandson of actor-director Richard) and Scott Alda Coffey (grandson of Alan Alda).  (R: AS, P, GV) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

With the exit of star Ruby Rose, The CW will be installing a new Batwoman in the series' second season, so here's a chance to see the DC Comicsbased show in its original form. Often while wearing a terrific costume, Rose does an extremely and commendably physical job of playing Kate Kane, who assumes the absent Batman's mission of protecting Gotham from criminal elements – a pursuit that often puts her in conflict with her father (Dougray Scott), a military veteran turned private-security-firm chief. Rachel Skarsten gets to vamp it up wonderfully as Kate's half-sister, who turns out to be Batwoman's chief enemy. And if you think you recognize the voice of Gotham gossip Vesper Fairchild ... yes, it's Rachel Maddow.  (Not rated: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray)

"MILITARY WIVES"

The Oscar-winning drama "Coming Home" dealt in part with how spouses handled being separated from their military mates during times of war, and so does this comedy-drama based on a true story that also inspired a documentary series. Kristin Scott Thomas and Sharon Horgan ("Catastrophe") play two of the wives who join a choir, along with many other women in the same situation, while their husbands are serving in Afghanistan. Jason Flemyng and Greg Wise (the husband of Emma Thompson) also appear in the film, which - like a number of other recent movies - have had their principal exhibition so far in On Demand, given how many theaters were closed due to the coronavirus pandemic. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P) (Also on On Demand)

"BIOGRAPHY: KENNY ROGERS"

In a sad irony, this profile of music icon Rogers was awaiting its A&E Network telecast at the time he passed away last March. While his first successes on the charts were largely pop tunes with the group he fronted, the First Edition, Rogers secured enduring success as a solo act by gravitating toward country music – which he supported with frequent concert tours and acting in projects such as the TV movies inspired by his single "The Gambler." Dolly Parton (with whom he collaborated famously on "Islands in the Stream"), Lionel Richie, Reba McEntire, Little Big Town and Chris Stapleton are among those commenting on the life and legend of Rogers. Excerpts from his 2017 farewell concert are included.  (Not rated)

"BLUE BLOODS: THE TENTH SEASON"

New York's law-and-order Reagan family has a new member, thanks to son Jamie (Will Estes) marrying former police partner Eddie (Vanessa Ray), but it also gets another one - someone the relatives didn't even know existed - in the course of this latest season of the perennially wellwritten and well-acted CBS drama series. In other developments, Frank (Tom Selleck) has to deal with alleged police brutality, and Erin (Bridget Moynahan) weighs a professional opportunity at the behest of the new mayor (guest star Dylan Walsh), and Danny and Baez (Donnie Wahlberg, Marisa Ramirez) are teamed uncomfortably with a Texas Ranger (guest star Lyle Lovett) on a case. Treat Williams reprises his guest role as Frank's ex-partner. Len Cariou, Sami Gayle, Gregory Jbara, Robert Clohessy and Abigail Hawk also star. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P, V)

Truex, Cup series make debut at Daytona road course

It's a track that few in NASCAR Cup have driven on let alone raced on but the road course at Daytona International Speedway will be the scene for the series' first summer race in North Florida.

Airing Sunday, Aug. 16, on NBC, the race will be run on the 12-turn, 3.56-mile course that for years has hosted the Rolex 24 at Daytona. With no practice and no qualifying allowed (at this writing), most drivers will be coming in with virtually no experience here. But if you're looking for someone who can excel, it might be Martin Truex Jr.

In his last eight races on road courses, the 2017 Cup champion has been impressive with an 8.13 average finish, with three wins, five top fives and six top 10s and 181 laps led without once starting from pole. His most recent victory came in 2019 at Sonoma, when he led the final 24 laps and held off a hard-charging Kyle Busch.

He's been no slouch, either, in his overall performance in 2020. As of late July, he was seventh in the Cup standings thanks to one win, three top fives and nine top 10s for an average finish of 15.17. His 557 points place him ahead of Alex Bowman but behind Chase Elliott.

Of course, there are others who do well on the windy circuits - Elliott, Clint Bowyer, Kevin Harvick and Denny Hamlin being among them - but Truex is always tough and it's easy to see how he could be in the mix for the checkered flag come Sunday.
