Kate Mara is 'A Teacher' in trouble in new FX on Hulu drama

What can happen when an educator crosses the line with a student?

Possible answers are supplied by "A Teacher," a limited FX on Hulu drama series that begins streaming Tuesday, Nov. 10. Also an executive producer of the project, Kate Mara has the title role as Claire Wilson, who risks her new job, her family life and everything else by getting romantically involved with Eric Walker (played by Nick Robinson, of the movie "Love, Simon"), a senior in her high school English classes in Texas ... where such a relationship is illegal. Fellow executive producer Hannah Fidell, expanding upon her same-named 2013 independent film, directed the majority of the 10 episodes and wrote or co-wrote many of them.

"I was really interested in exploring consent and manipulation and victimhood," Fidell explains, "and what that means in a narrative that I think that our culture is fairly obsessed with. What I was really curious about was what happens after. What are the consequences for the student especially, but for both of them? Do they both have to live with a scarlet letter for the rest of their lives? And how does victimhood present itself differently for a male victim as opposed to a female victim?"

Mara's youthful look helps make the affair depicted by "A Teacher" that much more plausible. "In high school," the actress recalls, "my favorite teacher was ... at the time, I thought she was way older than me, but she was probably 25 or something, which is much younger than I am now. As a student, that was someone I really looked up to, and who had a lot of control.

"And so, when playing Claire, I wanted to make sure that she did seem young. Claire's behavior is what is very interesting to me in this character and in this story. Just because she looks young, and maybe you wouldn't think twice if you saw her with Eric walking down the street, that doesn't justify the fact that she is abusing her power. That was definitely something that Hannah and I talked about a lot."

Also featuring Ashley Zukerman ("Succession") as Claire's husband and Rya Kihlstedt ("Love in the Time of Corona") as Eric's mother, "A Teacher" unfolds in very digestible half-hour segments.

"What is so exciting for me, being able to do it as a TV show," Fidell says, "is to have that time to really explore the how and the why and the effects and the consequences on both characters. It's incredibly rewarding to be able to continue to work through this subject matter, and also just to explore different facets of the story that I wasn't able to on an Indie, low-budget scale."

What's Available NOW On

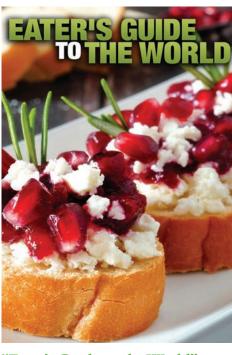

"The Mighty Ones"

This animated kids series follows the adventures of a group of dwellers of an unkempt backyard — a twig, a pebble, a leaf and a strawberry — and the equally unkempt humans who they mistake as gods. Josh Brener, Alex Cazares, Jessica McKenna and Jimmy Tatro provide the vocal talent. (ORIGINAL)

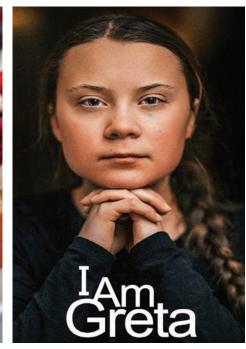

"A Teacher"

Based on Hannah Fidell's 2013 feature film of the same name, this limited FX on Hulu series (that's also created by Fidell) examines the complexities and consequences of an illegal relationship that develops between a young female teacher (Kate Mara, "House of Cards") and her male student (Nick Robinson," Jurassic World"). Ashley Zukerman, Shane Harper and Dylan Schmid also star. (ORIGINAL)

"Eater's Guide to the World"

"Saturday Night Live" alum Maya Rudolph narrates what the series' makers are calling the "ultimate food adventure," which takes viewers to the world's most surprising culinary destinations. Among the stops are the Pacific Northwest, for pork steak and fried chicken; Morocco, for snails, pastilla and tagine; and the Costa Rican jungle, where a plethora of indigenous comestibles are on the menu. "BILL & TED FACE THE MUSIC"

Proving that not even a pandemic can keep a popular franchise down, this much-later "threequel" did moderately good business recently as theaters were reopening in various locales, though it also was available as a direct-to-consumer video offering. Keanu Reeves and Alex Winter are back as the time travelers who are older but not necessarily wiser, a situation that could be problematic for the entire world unless the duo's music can prevent a forewarned cataclysm. William Sadler also returns as the Grim Reaper, with Kristen Schaal, Samara Weaving, Ernn Hayes, Jayma Mays ("Glee"), Jillian Bell, Holland Taylor and (as himself) Kid Cudi among other cast members, Steven Soderbergh is one of the picture's executive producers. DVD extra: "makingof" documentary. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P) (Also on Bluray and On Demand)

"SCHITT'S CREEK: THE COMPLETE COLLECTION"

Following its remarkable sweep of the major comedy categories in the most recent Primetime Emmy Awards comes the home-video debut of this Canadian sitcom, the brainchild of father and son Eugene and

Dan Levy. They're also among the stars of the show, about the boost that a once-wealthy, suddenly broke family is forced to give a town they had bought as a lark. As they try to return to financial health, they see the community rise, giving them an entirely new outlook on that investment. Among the series' nine Emmy wins, both Levys earned acting Emmys, as did fellow stars Catherine O'Hara and Annie Murphy. Jennifer Robertson, Tim Rozon ("Wynonna Earp"), Emily Hampshire, Dustin Milligan and Chris Elliott also are in the cast. DVD extras: "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; outtakes; "Inside Schitt's Creek" featurettes,  (Not rated: AS, P)

"THE LAST DANCE"

One of television's most acclaimed documentaries of recent times, this Emmy-winning series originally made for ESPN, and also televised later by ABC – now becomes available on Blu-ray in a "limited-time gift set" that offers more than four hours of extra content on top of its 10 episodes. The project follows the campaign of basketball icon Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls, under head coach Phil Jackson, to score a sixth NBA title within an eight-year span ... but factors including tension among team members threatened to derail that quest that began in the fall of 1997. The bonus features draw upon ESPN-originated material substantially, including "SportsCenter" segments and an uncut 1998 interview of Jordan by the late Stuart Scott. ★★★★ (Not rated: AS, P)

"THE OFFICE: THE COMPLETE SERIES"

Already available on DVD for some time, the popular American version of the Ricky Gervaisco-created comedy about rather quirky office co-workers - total fiction, right? - gets complete set treatment on Blu-ray, In its initial seasons, Steve Carell heads the ensemble cast as Michael Scott, manager of the Dunder Mifflin company branch in Scranton, Pa. Among his employees are likable Jim (John Krasninski), who has an obvious interest in receptionist Pam (Jenna Fischer), and the somewhat unsettling Dwight Schrute (Rainn Wilson). Ed Helms, B.J. Novak, Angela Kinsey, Craig Robinson, Kate Flannery, Mindy Kaling and Rashida Jones are among other performers who got major career boosts from the show's success; James Spader succeeded Carell in its final season (and then went straight into 'The Blacklist," on which he still continues). $\star\star\star\star$ (Not rated: AS, P)

"DOWNTON ABBEY: MOVIE & TV COLLECTION"

Any devoted fan of the Julian Fellowes-created saga of the Crawley family and its attending staff may have the drama in a previous home-video incarnation already, but this latest variation adds the 2019 feature film that reunited most of the cast of the internationally acclaimed show (broadcast by PBS in the United States). And this may not be the last DVD set of it, since talk of another movie sequel remains active. Going sequentially through all the material here shows just how faithful the film was to the series, while recapping just enough to bring any newcomers up to speed quickly. The superb ensemble cast includes Hugh Bonneville, Elizabeth McGovern, Maggie Smith, Michelle Dockery, Dan Stevens, Joanne Froggatt, Jim Carter, Phyllis Logan and Laura Carmichael.  (Unrated and – for the movie – PG: AS, P)

A bulked up DeChambeau hopes to bomb the field at Augusta

If you're looking for a favorite to win this year's Masters Tournament, look no further than Bryson DeChambeau.

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Indeed, the 27-year-old Central California native has the hot hand after winning the U.S. Open in September. In 2020's second major at suburban New York's Winged Foot, he wowed the few onlookers at the spectator-less tournament by launching monster drive after monster drive to romp the field by six strokes and bag his first

It was a reward for using golf's pandemic-induced shutdown to his advantage. During March, April and May of this year, DeChambeau consumed 5,000-6,000 calories a day and worked with a personal trainer to add 40 pounds of muscle to his 6-foot, 1-inch frame. The dramatic change in his body in such a short period of time surprised even the trainer, Greg Roskopf, who also works with the Denver Broncos.

A win in July at the Rocket Mortgage Classic in Detroit showed all his work was paying off and his dominant performance two months later at Winged Foot confirmed it. As of late October, he sat atop the PGA Tour's money list with more than $2.4 million in winnings.

And the added muscle will no doubt help him at Augusta National, a course that favors bombers. His best finish in three Masters starts is 21st and he mentions it as a primary motivator for bulking up his body. So he's hoping his new physique will produce a long-awaited victory and a green jacket he can fit into.

He'll tee it up against the sport's best when the 2020 Masters takes place Thursday through Sunday, Nov. 12-15, on ESPN and CBS.

Hulu's 'Eater's Guide to the World' presents foodie experiences you never considered

If you want to know where you can eat alone in peace in the Pacific Northwest or how to get a delicious meal after the bars close in New York City, then "Eater's Guide to the World" may be for you.

Premiering Wednesday, Nov. 11, on Hulu, the seven-episode series is more than your typical travel/foodie show, not only going to different cities and restaurants but also putting a specific focus on the culinary experiences. So in addition to the above destinations, viewers can learn where they can eat well in neighborhoods near airports, what the big deal is over the snails and tagine in Casablanca and all about the flavors that can be had in the Costa Rican jungle.

It's an outside-the-box idea that came from Eater, the online dining guide, and has Maya Rudolph ("Saturday Night Live") as its narrator. And just how out there it is is illustrated in the opening episode in the Pacific Northwest, where solo dining is in vogue and a practice called "mindful eating" is big among those in the know.

"It's about slowing down," explains executive producer Lauren Cynamon, "really meditating during your (meal) but slowing-down, smelling-your-food, taking-a-moment appreciation ... the kind of visceral moments of how it can be really profound if you kind of let yourself linger in that moment. But I had never heard of it before and I think it's really interesting as a new kind of small meditative practice you could do with your food."

Conversely, there is the episode titled "The A– Crack of Dawn in New York City," which follows hungry and presumably well-lubricated bargoers post-last call as they seek out delectables such as Korean barbecue, empanadas and birria tacos just as the City That Never Sleeps is getting the new day underway.

"How nostalgic it feels now," Cynamon says with a laugh of the episode that was filmed before the pandemic in December 2019. "Whether you live in New York or have just traveled to New York on vacation, I feel that there are only a few cities in the world that feel like that, where you really can get the best meals at any time of the night. ... So yeah, from doughnuts to like a drag queen and this amazing diner that's been in the neighborhood forever, just all these different vignettes (about) all these different lives that could be happening in New York that you sometimes never think about."
