Balance and tranquility are two aspects Wulf Acupuncture hopes to present its patients with its relaxing atmosphere.

coverstory

BY ANTHONY RICHARDS

Infrared therapy, nutritional counseling among additional treatments offered

Constance Wulf, or “Connie” as she is known by her friends and patients, strives to help people in the community in a variety of ways through her practice, Wulf Acupuncture.

Wulf has experience in her field of medicine and is a licensed acupuncture physician by the State of Florida and also has a master of science in Oriental medicine and a bachelor of professional health studies from the Florida College of Integrative Medicine.

Part of a patient’s experience at the practice is taking part in a relaxing atmosphere as soon as they walk through the doors.

Balance and tranquility are aspects of life that Wulf has a great commitment towards and she wants her patients to appreciate the same.

According to Wulf, the perfect environment for maximizing a treatment’s full effect is by approaching it with a calm and friendly demeanor.

Wulf believes that acupuncture is a reliable option to help combat certain issues men and women experience in their daily lives.

Some of these issues include menopause or fertility concerns and hormone imbalances for women and sports performance, arthritis and erectile dysfunction for men.

However, although the holistic approach of acupuncture can have its effect alone, there are many additional avenues that patients can look into, as the practice specializes in more than just acupuncture.

Other treatments offered include herbal remedies, nutritional counseling and weight loss support.

Offering these treatments is an example of how Wulf understands that taking a look at the body as a whole is the best way to make sure patients find their best healthy self, especially with the new year underway and many looking inward and outward at how they look and feel.

Infrared detox and reflexology is now available at the Wulf Acupuncture Ponte Vedra location every Wednesday.

The therapy uses infrared wavelengths to penetrate soft tissue up to one and a half inches. This process of warming the body and opening blood vessels is called “vasodilation,” and it can help in many ways, such as with stress and fatigue, muscle aches and by building immune system support.

Those interested in taking part in the infrared therapy can make an appointment by contacting Larry by calling or texting 941-462-9817 or by filling out the form online at acuwulf.com.

Another way Wulf Acupuncture offers an outlet toward a healthier lifestyle is by offering Chinese herbals and hypnosis as alternatives to try to help patients quit smoking.

“Movie: Riotsville, U.S.A.”

From director Sierra Pettengill (“The Reagan Show,” “Town Hall”) comes this 2022 documentary that recalls a point in American history when the nation’s leaders were faced with the civil disorder of the late 1960s and did everything possible to win the war in the streets using police and military.

“Movie: The Drop”

From co-writer/director Sarah Adina Smith (“Buster’s Mal Heart,” “The Midnight Swim”) comes this cringe comedy about a couple whose marriage is put to the test when the wife drops a friend’s baby during a tropical destination wedding. Anna Konkle, Jermaine Fowler, Utkarsh Ambudkar and Jillian Bell head the cast. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: Paris, 13th District”

Based on short stories by Adrian Tomine, this 2021 French comedy follows the lives of four friends — three girls and a guy — who are also sometimes lovers. Lucie Zhang, Makita Samba, Noemie Merlant and Jehnny Beth head the cast for director Jacques Audiard (“The Sisters Brothers,” “Rust and Bone”).

“Movie: One Way”

Director Andrew Baird’s (“Zone 414”) 2022 actioner tells the story of Freddy (Colson Baker, “Captive State”), a petty criminal with who doesn’t have time on his side. He’s on the run with a bag of cash and coke but he’s also wounded badly with a bullet in his gut. Kevin Bacon, Drea De Matteo and Travis Fimmel also star.

It's the college of foodie knowledge weekends on Food Network

Whether you're looking for new ideas or a novel approach to an old favorite, weekend mornings and afternoons on Food Network have gained a reputation as the place to go for culinary knowledge from pros in the know.

Yes, Saturdays and Sundays offer up a treasure trove of recipes, tricks, tips and conversation aimed at upping viewers' kitchen game and enabling them to impress family and friends. In the industry, they're known as "stand and stirs" and they're in plentiful supply on the cablenet. The following are a few of the more noteworthy entries on the coming week's schedule.

Sunday, Jan. 15, on "Girl Meets Farm," Molly Yeh feeds a hungry crew of beet farmers with a hearty meal of pulled pork sandwiches with charred broccoli slaw and a side of beet chips with French onion yogurt. And for a sweet treat, comes up with her thick frosted speculoos cookie bars and S'mores puppy chow. Hope the dog doesn't mind.

Mary Berg is a big fan of cooking smarter, not harder, and in Sunday's edition of "Mary Makes It Easy," she takes store-bought items and jazzes them up into a whole other meal. So a rotisserie chicken becomes coq au vin; frozen butternut squash, frozen chopped kale and day-old bakery bread becomes French toast; and bagged coleslaw becomes Japanese pancakes. Truly outside-the-box (or bag) cooking.

There are fewer greater foods than cheese and in the Saturday, Jan. 21, episode of "The Kitchen," the chefs show off its ooey-gooey versatility as Katie Lee Biegel prepares baked brie topped with savory granola and fruit, Jeff Mauro creates his chiles rellenos and Geoffrey Zakarian presents a dessert of ginger lemon basque cheesecake with lemon curd topping. Simply irresistible.

Also that morning on "Trisha's Southern Kitchen," Trisha Yearwood invites in Reba McEntire for a tour of her exhibit at the Country Music Hall of Fame, then both get down to business by making a dinner of bacon-wrapped turkey meatloaf, Brussels sprouts with dried cranberries and almonds, and for dessert a lemon pound cake with Reba's royal glaze. A down-home meal from down-home folks.

Then immediately following, Ree Drummond is cooking double time on "Pioneer Woman" as she whips up four meals – a steak frites salad, a one-pot Cajun Alfredo, egg rolls bowls and a jalapeno pineapple pizza – all in the hour timeslot.

And on "Guy's Ranch Kitchen," sweet and sour is the theme as Guy Fieri welcomes in chef Rocco DiSpirito to make his Maine lobster peperonata and chef Aaron May to prepare his grilled quail pomegranate. Exotic twists on traditional dishes.
