Bryan Cranston stars in Season 2 of "Your Honor," premiering Friday on Showtime's online and On Demand platforms.

Grief weighs heavily on 'Your Honor' in Season 2 of Showtime legal thriller

The image of a bearded, unkempt Bryan Cranston tells you a great deal about what's ahead for "Your Honor" in the second and final season of the Showtime legal thriller.

Indeed, as the new round gets underway Friday, Jan. 13, on Showtime's online and On Demand platforms (and Sunday, Jan. 15, on cable), Cranston's character of New Orleans Judge Michael Desiato is in a state of grief so profound following the accidental shooting of son Adam (Hunter Doohan) in the closing moments of Season 1 that he's really stopped caring about much of anything. Which prompted the show's star and executive producer to consider how that might look on screen – and on himself.

"It's really allowed me to reflect on my own personal life," the actor explains, "and the part of the process of dealing with tragedy or disappointment or grief is to allow yourself to feel it, to truly be in it and not try to hastily get out of that but put your arms around grief and almost welcome it as a way of process to then work through it. I think, the more we try to resist it, the longer it takes to process it, and it may then linger. It also may create and exacerbate other situations in your life. So, I think ... it's allowing me to mature in understanding all of life and its ups and downs."

Beyond Michael's grief, Desire Gang leader Big Mo (Andrene Ward-Hammond) will be making waves this season as she pushes to expand her empire throughout the city with the help of Little Mo (Machekanyanga); Fia Baxter (Lilli Kay) is forced to reckon with her family's true nature in the wake of her boyfriend's shooting while her brother Carlo (Jimi Stanton) is determined to follow in his father Jimmy's (Michael Stuhlbarg) criminal footsteps; and Eugene's (Benjamin Flores Jr.) attempt to avenge his brother's death threatens to turn New Orleans into a tinder box ready to explode into all-out war.

Also, Rosie Perez joins the cast as Olivia Delmont, a charismatic U.S. Attorney who must manipulate an unwilling asset to bring down a crime organization. Other cast returning this season include Isiah Whitlock Jr. as Charlie Figaro, a local politician and Michael's best friend; Hope Davis as Jimmy's formidable wife Gina; and Margo Martindale as Sen. Elizabeth Guthrie, the mother of Jimmy's late wife.

"I think what's hopefully really interesting about Season 2, or one of the aspects, is that it's a continuation from Season 1, but it's not a reset and a redo ...," explains Joey Hartstone, who replaces creator Peter Moffat as showrunner this season. "So, expect to see the characters that you know, but because they all endured such trauma in Season 1, it's impacted who they are and often changed who they are and how they react (and) are somewhat different from who you met."

Get fit for the new year with healthy recipes from Cooking Channel

It's the second week of January – how are your New Year's resolutions doing?

If eating healthier is one of them, Cooking Channel online has you covered, offering up ideas for meal makeovers and low-calorie desserts that are imaginative and look delicious.

Carbs get a bad rap these days. But really, who can resist pasta? One health-conscious option for those lovers of all things noodle is Giada De Laurentiis' lemon basil spaghetti (www.cookingchanneltv.com/videos/lemon-basil-spaghetti-0139045), which she makes from whole wheat spaghetti, lemon, basil, garlic and salmon and serves over a bed of lettuce of your choice. Yum.

Along those same lines, there is Ellie Krieger's macaroni and four cheeses (www.cookingchanneltv.com/recipes/macaroni-and-4-cheeses-1945972). The calorie count for a dish can reach four figures, but Krieger has found a way to cut into that by substituting low-fat milk and part-skim ricotta for the full-power versions and also mixing in pureed winter squash to bump up the creaminess. Yes, there are still caloric ingredients like sharp cheddar and Monterey jack cheeses in this mix but if mac and cheese is what you absolutely crave, this is the way you have it at a fraction of the calories – 393 per serving to be exact.

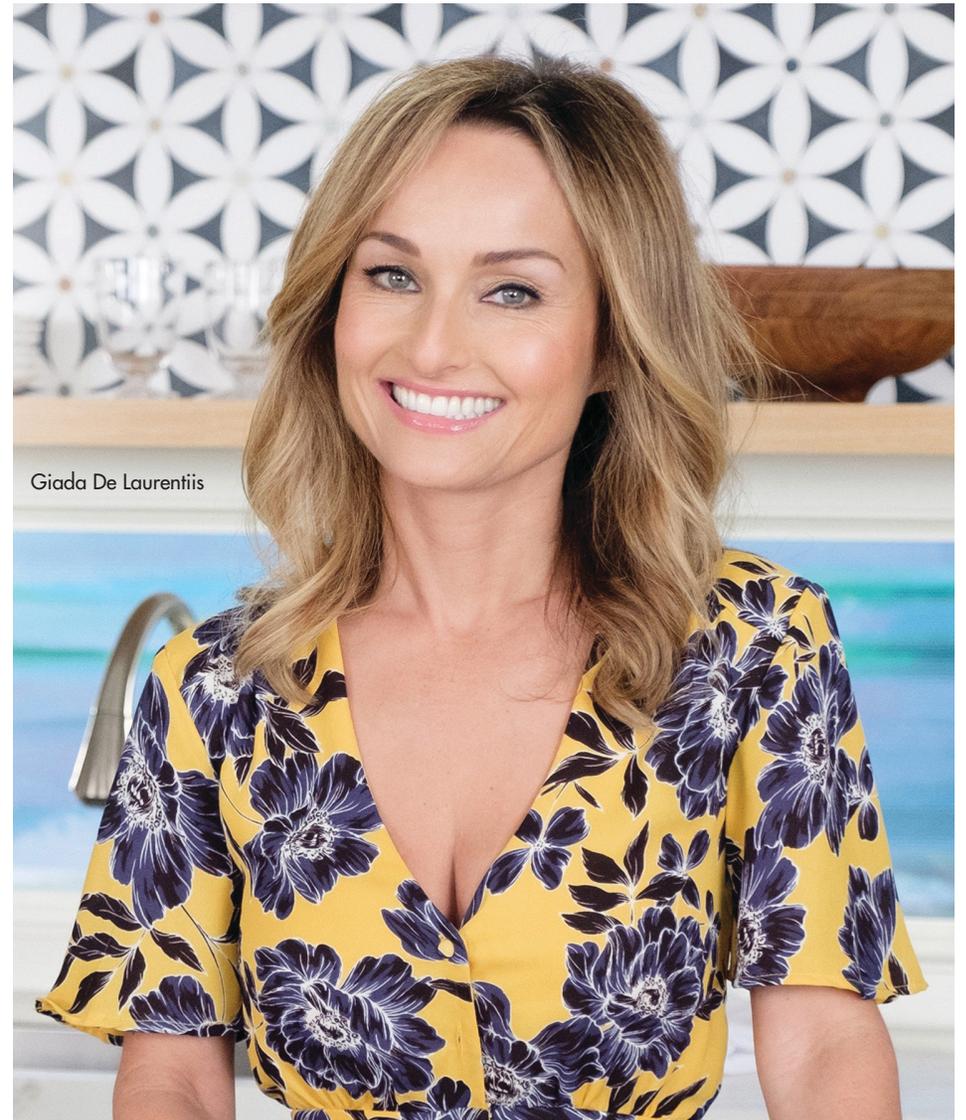

There is no more comforting a comfort food than meatloaf and Krieger has her own version with her turkey meatloaf (www.cookingchanneltv.com/recipes/ellie-krieger/moms-turkey-meatloaf-1946007), which she makes with ground turkey (instead of beef), quick oats (instead bread crumbs), skim milk (instead of whole) and mixes them with eggs, Worcestershire sauce, red bell pepper, tomato sauce, salt, pepper and ketchup. At 207 calories a serving, it's comfort without the guilt.

In terms of healthy proteins, there are few healthier than salmon and Dave Lieberman brings forth a personal favorite with what he calls "Dad's poached salmon" (www.cookingchanneltv.com/recipes/packages/fresh-start-healthy-eating/healthy-foods-and-healthy-diet-ideas/videos/healthy-weeknight-dinners). For this dish, he first creates a stock from the skeleton of a fileted salmon, celery, carrots, white wine, water and seasonings, which he sifts and uses to poach the salmon. There's a lot more procedure and ingredients than we can mention here but you get the idea – this dish is special and very nutritious.

For something more exotic, try De Laurentiis' chicken saltimbocca (www.cookingchanneltv.com/recipes/chicken-saltimbocca-1942157). She makes hers with chicken cutlets pounded flat, prosciutto, frozen chopped spinach, grated parmesan, chicken broth and lemon juice. It tastes sinful but at 227 calories per serving it's a nice guilt-free indulgence.

Of course, there is just fraction of what's available. For more information, check out www.cookingchanneltv.com/recipes/packages/fresh-start-healthy-eating
