Shock and awe: Prime Video brings 'The Power'

What if the power balance of the world shifted, seemingly overnight, and your fate was suddenly in the hands of a teenage girl?

Premiering Friday, March 31, on Prime Video, the highly-anticipated sci-fi thriller "The Power" explores a reality where young women all over the world suddenly gain life-altering, supernatural abilities and must learn to grapple with their newfound strength.

Based on the award-winning novel of the same name by Naomi Alderman, "The Power" stars Toni Collette ("The Staircase") as Mayor Margot Cleary-Lopez and Auli'i Cravalho ("Moana," 2016) as her daughter, Jos, who are two of the many people impacted when young girls mysteriously start developing the ability to electrocute others at will.

Margot, described as a "genuine, progressive politician" and a mother of three, is thrust into the spotlight as the "power balance of the world around [her] is flipped on its head," and her own teenage daughter starts experiencing tinglings of this new, shocking phenomena.

What was once an average, modern-day civilization with a patriarchal society is transformed by the emergence of The Power. The status quo is questioned as the strength of these young women — both supernatural and otherwise — brings forth the possibility of a new order: a matriarchy.

In a voiceover from the show, Margot explains: "We never dared to imagine it: a world that was built for us, where we made the rules. That world was at our fingertips all this time. All we had to do was burn down the world that was."

But, of course, no great power comes without great sacrifice (or responsibility). We've all (likely) seen enough superhero movies to know that.

Collette's performance is mirrored by that of "The Good Wife" alum Josh Charles, who was first tied to the role of Gov. Daniel Dandon in mid-2022. Dandon, both a Liberal and a Democrat, is poised to be Collette's greatest foil. He is the governor of Washington and a "skilled political animal" who is always poised with a snide remark.

Rounding out this all-star cast are "Ted Lasso's" Toheeb Jimoh as Tunde, an aspiring young journalist from Nigeria; Ria Zmitrowicz ("Misbehaviour," 2020) as Roxy, the frustrated daughter of a British mobster; newcomer Halle Bush as Allie, a foster child and victim of abuse; and John Leguizamo ("The Menu," 2022) as Rob Lopez, Margot's longstanding, devoted husband.

Alderman worked alongside an all-female writers' room while adapting her novel — a trend that continued through production, with all 10 episodes later directed by women. Ulga Hauksdóttir ("Hanna") and Shannon Murphy ("Killing Eve") are both credited for directing multiple episodes through the series, alongside a slate of talented creatives including Lisa Gunning ("Tigerman," 2020), Neasa Hardiman ("Happy Valley") and Logan Kibens ("Snowfall").

Collette highlighted the importance of working with such a strong, female-led team in an interview with Variety, where she noted that it "contributed so much in terms of vision and collaborating," which proved essential during a long, arduous creative process.

"The Power" was originally slated to start filming in February 2022 with stars Leslie Mann ("Knocked Up," 2007) and Rainn Wilson ("The Office") at the helm, as Margot and Daniel, respectively. Unfortunately, only a month into production, "The Power" experienced a myriad of delays due to COVID-19 and its associated lockdowns. With production shuttered for the remainder of the year, Wilson faced scheduling difficulties and was forced to drop out of the project.

In early 2021, the role of Daniel Dandon was then offered to Tim Robbins ("The Shawshank Redemption," 1994), but a year later, Dateline reported that both he and Mann had exited the series. While neither the actors nor the outlet have made an official statement, it is widely believed these departures were also due to production delays.

“Movie: Official Competition”

A billionaire (Jose Luis Gomez) looking to make a groundbreaking film hires the best — filmmaker Lola Cuevas (Penelope Cruz) and two enormously talented actors who also have monstrous egos: Hollywood star Félix (Antonio Banderas) and aging thespian Iván (Oscar Martinez). They're legends, but not friends. Through a series of increasingly hilarious tests set by Lola, they must confront each other and their legacies in this 2021 comedy.

“Movie: You Laugh But It's True”

This 2011 documentary, a joint U.S./South Africa production, follows Johannesburg native Trevor Noah, who would later go on to become the host of “The Daily Show,” as he uses his childhood experiences in a biracial family during apartheid to prepare for his first one-man show.

“Movie: In the Fade”

Diane Kruger was named best actress at the 2017 Cannes Film Festival for her acclaimed performance in writer-director Fatih Akin's German drama, which also won the 2018 Golden Globe Award for best foreign language film. Kruger plays a German woman whose husband and son are killed in a terrorist attack carried out by neo-Nazis. Numan Acar, Rafael Santana, Denis Moschitto and Hanna Hilsdorf also star.

“Tiny Beautiful Things”

Cheryl Strayed's bestselling novel served as the basis for this dramedy series that casts Kathryn Hahn (“Transparent,” “Mrs. Fletcher”) as Clare, a struggling writer who finds success as an advice columnist even while her own life is falling apart. Sarah Pidgeon, Quentin Plair and Tanzyn Crawford are also in the cast for creator/executive producer Liz Tigelaar (“Little Fires Everywhere”). (ORIGINAL) Series Premiere New

Stewart explores tea, boils lobster and more in Season 2 of 'Martha Cooks'

Though coffee is recognized as the morning beverage of choice in this country, tea has its devotees as well. One of them is Martha Stewart, and in Season 2 of "Martha Cooks," she explores how to use it in several different ways in one episode.

Dropping its nine episodes Monday, April 3, on The Roku Channel, the new season finds Stewart at a friend's Westport, Conn., tea shop, where she learns the finer points of teas and tea-making. Then she returns to her kitchen at her Bedford, N.Y., farm to embark on an ambitious dish called sugar and tea-smoked chicken.

The process involves brining a whole bird in salt for several days, then smoking it with tea and sugar in a Dutch oven. Stewart and niece Sophie clear out while the poultry smokes and return to a mahogany-colored chicken unlike anything anyone has ever seen.

Also this season, Stewart heads to Maine to learn all there is to know about boiling lobster, gets a visit from chef and restaurateur Jamie Oliver, who demonstrates how to make several one-pot recipes, and does a brunch with chef Ignacio Mattos that's complete with cocktail, waffles and an omelet tricked out with caviar and creme fraiche.

At 81, it's clear that Stewart isn't slowing down and the recipes this season prove that her creativity is still at a peak level. But if you find that you still need more Martha, here are a few options you can stream right now.

"Martha Stewart Living" (Roku): Stewart arguably made her name on TV with this 1993-2004 syndicated half-hour series based on the same-named magazine, in which she presented segments on cooking, gardening, craft making and decorating. Not only was it informative, it was a regular presence at awards season, garnering numerous Daytime Emmy Awards, including four for Stewart herself as outstanding host

"Martha Knows Best" (discovery+, Spectrum, HGTV Go): Gardening is front and center of this HGTV series that finds Stewart offering up tips to callers and celebrity friends and showing off projects and improvements at her 150-acre estate in Bedford, N.Y.

"Martha Bakes" (Roku): Well, of course she does, and in this 2011-18 Hallmark Channel series, she shares baking tips and techniques that enable the home baker to produce the most impressive desserts and pastries in their own kitchen. And the confections run the gamut, so whether it's lemon meringue pie or brown butter shortbread, there will likely be something to capture anyone's imagination.
