Jeannie Mai co-hosts "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve with Ryan Seacrest"

So long, 2023: 'Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve' ushers in another new year

Stop rockin' around the Christmas tree, because it's time to head to New York City — via your living room TV — for "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve With Ryan Seacrest," ringing in the new year Sunday, Dec. 31, when the annual special is broadcast live on ABC from The Big Apple. Seacrest, who will undoubtedly be toasting his upcoming gig as the new host of "Wheel of Fortune" when the ball drops, will be joined by co-hosts from parties across America as everyone welcomes the new year with musical performances to keep audiences dancing all the way into 2024.

Every year, parties fill Times Square in New York City, braving the brisk weather to watch the ball drop. Top musical artists keep everyone celebrating warm with exciting live performances you can't help but rock out to, from stages in The Big Apple and Los Angeles. The at-home broadcast also features clips from celebrations around the world as countries spanning every time zone count down the last seconds of 2023.

The superstars helping us ring in 2024 are Aqua ("Barbie Girl"); Doechii ("Persuasive"); Ellie Goulding ("By the End of the Night"); Janelle Monáe ("Lipstick Lover"); Loud Luxury, Two Friends and Bebe Rexha, who will perform their hit "If Only I"; Ludacris ("Stand Up"); Nile Rodgers and CHIC ("Good Times"); Paul Russell ("Lil Boo Thang"); and Reneé Rapp ("Snow Angel"). Hollywood rockers Thirty Seconds to Mars ("Seasons") will also be putting on a show at the L.A. party. More musical acts performing from Times Square will be announced as we near the final days of the year, according to ABC.

Tuning in to the "New Year's Rockin' Eve" broadcast is an annual tradition for millions of viewers, and a convention that began all the way back to the eve of 1973. That year, feeling that the New Year's Eve broadcast special had grown stale, Dick Clark, known primarily at the time as the long-standing host of the music and dance program "American Bandstand," used his connection to youth culture to craft a new kind of special that would attract a younger audience.

Clark was the face of New Year's Eve programming until 2004 when the host suffered a stroke, leading "Live! With Regis and Kathie Lee" anchor Regis Philbin to step in that year. Clark returned to co-host the show in 2005 alongside "American Idol" host Seacrest, who celebrates his 19th Times Square New Year with this upcoming broadcast.

Clark and Seacrest co-hosted "New Year's Rockin' Eve" for years, ringing in their final new year together in 2012 before Clark's death that August. Clark's legacy lives on in the iconic broadcast he created, not just in its name but in its spirit. In an interview with Entertainment Weekly last December, Seacrest shared what Clark taught him about what the show means to viewers, saying, "I think the idea for us is just to create a big party for people who don't want to go anywhere, who want to just relax, be in their homes, be with their families, order pizza, order Buffalo wings, whatever it is." Seacrest added, "We can bring the excitement, the energy and the new year to them. That's what Dick told me all along. He goes, 'We're talking to people who are at home, but we bring the excitement to them through the show.'"

Streamers stun: the best cooking shows of 2023

There's a lot to sink your teeth into when it comes to watching TV. If cooking mayhem and breaking baking boundaries are your thing, these series — currently available to stream — might just be for you:

“Chef’s Table” (Netflix): Following a different top-tier chef in each episode, this docuseries has travelled from Italy to Thailand to Peru, highlighting culinary innovation, techniques and cooking philosophies. Currently, six seasons of “Chef’s Table” are available, with more seasons coming soon. With 30 visually stunning episodes and two additional spinoff series — “Chef’s Table: France” and “Chef’s Table: BBQ” — there is sure to be an episode to fit everyone’s taste, making mouths water and stomachs grumble coast to coast.

“Hell’s Kitchen” (Prime Video): Gordon Ramsay is back and hotter than ever. With 21 seasons to binge and Season 22 on the air, this series proves a fan-favourite, following Ramsay as he puts 18 aspiring chefs through the gauntlet of his “fiery” command, each given a spot in his intense, high-octane culinary academy. The chefs are separated into two teams, each led by previous culinary “graduates.”

“Secret Chef” (Disney+): This series, created by chef David Chang (“Ugly Delicious”), welcomes chefs — from “professional chefs and home cooks to social media influencers,” according to Disney — to take part in an unusual cooking challenge, in which each chef is isolated in a secret subterranean kitchen, each connected by a series of conveyor belts. With no judges (and only an animated talking hat for guidance), the chefs are tasked with performing a series of cooking challenges, before they must then rate each other’s dishes through blind taste tests.

“Baking Impossible” (Netflix): Showcasing “bakineering” at its finest, this one-season series, hosted by Justin Willman (“Magic for Humans”), welcomes pairs of contestants to try their hand at the world of extreme baking, asking them to complete challenges that combine baking with engineering (see: “bakineering”) with someone they’ve previously never met. Each team — composed of one baker and one engineer — has 18 hours to complete their projects, at which point their creations face stress tests and taste tests by the judges, who then eliminate the weakest pair.

BEST NEW YEAR’S EVE MOVIES

“The Apartment” (1960): Director Billy Wilder’s Oscar-winning comedy-drama concludes on New Year’s Eve, as elevator operator Fran Kubelik (Shirley MacLaine) makes her romantic choice between corporate executive J.D. Sheldrake (Fred MacMurray) and his recent employee C.C. Baxter (Jack Lemmon) — resulting in one of the most famous movie lines ever.

“Ocean’s Eleven” (1960): The lights go out throughout Las Vegas when midnight hits on New Year’s Eve, thanks to the ex-military buddies led by suave Danny Ocean (Frank Sinatra) in the ultimate “Rat Pack” movie. Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr. and Peter Lawford play some of the other pals who are in on the simultaneous robbery of several casinos. Turner Classic Movies shows the film often and appropriately presents it again on Sunday, Dec. 31.

“The Poseidon Adventure” (1972): Not only does an enormous tidal wave overturn the S.S. Poseidon on New Year’s Eve, the cruise ship’s passengers are merrily crooning “Auld Lang Syne” at the moment the vessel begins to capsize. Like many other sites, the Poseidon hasn’t yet gotten rid of its Christmas tree, which is lucky for those who climb it to survive.

“About Last Night ... ” (1986): As evidence that almost anyone’s New Year’s Eve has to go better, take Danny and Debbie (Rob Lowe, Demi Moore), whose live-in relationship hits the skids amid a huge holiday crowd at a favorite Chicago bar. While she wants to comfort a girlfriend (Elizabeth Perkins) who’s just suffered a trauma in love, he wants to party, and the rest pretty much spells itself out.

“When Harry Met Sally ... ” (1989): Although the picture has a post-script beyond it, this comedy’s pivotal scene is set at a New Year’s Eve party where hopeless — and hapless — romantic Sally (Meg Ryan) isn’t feeling very celebratory, until longtime confidant Harry (Billy Crystal) shows up and finally professes the feelings for her that took so long to develop.

“The Waltons” - Complete Series (Dec. 31)

In the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, during the Great Depression, the Walton family makes its small income from its sawmill on Walton's Mountain. The saga follows the family through economic depression and World War II; and through growing up, school, courtship, marriage, employment, birth, aging, illness, and death.

“Stillwater” (Dec. 31)

Unemployed roughneck Bill Baker (Matt Damon) travels from Oklahoma to Marseille, France, to visit his estranged daughter Allison (Abigail Breslin), who is imprisoned for a murder she claims she did not commit. Chasing after a new tip that could exonerate her, Bill, eager to prove his worth and regain his daughter's trust, takes matters into his own hands. He is quickly stymied by language barriers, cultural differences, and a complicated legal system until he meets French actress Virginie (Camille Cottin). Together, these unlikely allies embark on a journey of discovery, truth, love and liberation.

“Foe” (Jan. 4)

Hen (Saoirse Ronan) and Junior (Paul Mescal) farm a secluded piece of land that has been in Junior's family for generations, but their quiet life is thrown into turmoil when an uninvited stranger (Aaron Pierre) shows up at their door with a startling proposal. Are they willing to risk their relationship, and perhaps their personal identity, for a chance to continue survival in a new world? Based on bestselling author Iain Reid's novel of the same name.

“James May: Our Man in India” (Jan. 5)

James May takes on his greatest adventure yet: a 3,000 mile coast-to-coast epic across India, the most populous – and perhaps most extraordinary – country in the world. Starting by the Arabian Sea and finishing at the Bay of Bengal, his journey will encompass incredible landscapes, from the baking deserts of Rajasthan to the dramatic Himalayan foothills, and explore environments as diverse as the mangrove forests of the Sundarbans, through to the global megacities of Mumbai, Delhi, and Kolkata.

Tom Selleck in “Blue Bloods”

Q: I heard that “Blue Bloods” is ending. Is that true? – Bill Shaffer, via e-mail

A: It is, but not for a while yet. The Tom Selleck-starring CBS police drama's 14th season – set to begin Feb. 16 – will be its last, and it will be divided into two parts. The first 10 of the final episodes will air early in 2014, then the concluding eight will appear in the fall next year.

Though it's always a shock in a sense to see one of television's longest-running shows reach its conclusion, it's not a total surprise in this case. The principal cast members of “Blue Bloods” were asked to take a pay cut for a 14th year of the series to happen, and while that agreement was reached in the case of that one season, it would have had to be extended or renegotiated for it to happen again. By planning for the ending now, the creative team can plan for a proper ending to the saga of New York's law-and-order Reagan family. Just because new episodes will end, though, don't expect the show to vanish completely. Reruns of it are syndicated heavily on such channels as ION Television, UPtv and NewsNation, and the repeatability that it already has demonstrated is virtually certain to keep it visible for some time to come.

Q: Now that the Hollywood strikes are over, when will “Law & Order: Special Victims Unit” be back? – Dawn Collins, Philadelphia, Pa.

A: It will return to NBC with new episodes on Jan. 18, the same night that its sister series – the revival of the parent “Law & Order” as well as “Law & Order: Special Victims Unit” also start showing new stories. The dramas were ready to go into production relatively soon after the actors' strike ended, since work on scripts was started right after the conclusion of the writers' strike.

The same applied to NBC's “Chicago” shows, which will return the night before the “Law & Order” franchise does. All of those series are from Wolf Entertainment, which is able to get most of its broadcast-network programs back on the air before that happens elsewhere. However, Wolf's “FBI” trio won't be back on CBS until Feb. 13, the week that many of that network's other returning shows also begin offering new content.
